Nixon's Chief Of Staff Connected With Secret Payments

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon's chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, has been identified by federal investigators as one of five Nixon associates authorized to approve payments from a secret Nixon campaign fund, The Washington Post reports.
 Haldeman is the highest-ranking White House official so far linked with investigations of an alleged espionage and sabotage operation carried out by the Republican campaign.
 The secret fund, the Post said, financed the alleged spying and sabotage.
 Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren declined comment on the report in the newspaper's Wednesday editions. He referred newsmen to a statement issued by the White House press office to the Post, saying that "the reference to Bob Haldeman is untrue."

 The Post said it based its story on talks with federal investigators and from accounts of sworn testimony before the grand jury probing the break-in at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate building. The break-in led to disclosures by the Post and other publications of an alleged spying and sabotage ring operated by Republicans and directed against Democrats.
 The operations, according to the Post, were financed by a secret cash fund kept in the safe of Maurice H. Stans, head of the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President. The General Accounting Office, in a public report, has questioned the purpose of some $350,000 kept in Stan's safe.

The Post, in the report Wednesday and in previous accounts, identified the other four who controlled payments from the fund as former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, also former chief of the Nixon campaign organization; Stans; Jeb Stuart Magruder, former White House aide and deputy director of the Nixon campaign; and Herbert Kalmbach, Nixon's personal attorney.

How do you speak without a voice box?

How does a woman live without a breast?

You go into a cancer operation and all you care about is coming through alive. And you come through. You're alive. Now there you are, facing the hard part: How do you live with this drastic change? That's when you need the kind of help you can only get from someone who has been through the same thing. A woman who has had a breast removed reassures another woman who has just had the same operation. She teaches her special exercises. She helps with her clothes problems. She knows how shattering it can be, and helps her pick up the pieces. A man who has lost his voice box helps another man to speak again. Instruction, yes. But more important, encouragement; the example of someone who's lived through the same thing and overcome the same problem. "How can you possibly know what it's like?" "I've been there." That's our program for rehabilitation. It's not just enough to save your life; we also care how well you live it. So if you need help, if you know someone who does, please call our local Unit. We can help.
