

CADET SLOUCH by Jim Earle

"We had to do something—it got to where we were digging this same hole every week!"

Listen Up—

Hospital Policy Questioned

Editor: It has been my impression that the University Hospital is set up to serve the needs of A&M students, but I have found that this is not so.

It so happened that the date I was to receive my allergy shots was also the day I was in class from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. When I asked to get these shots afterwards I was flatly refused and now I have to cough, sniff and sneeze until Monday morning.

This is a grave injustice. name withheld by request

action against lawless men, not against noble citizens or just average citizens. Free men and free women living in a free society . . . governing themselves have, as one of their first duties, the protection and preservation of the Constitutional democracy under which they live and thrive." Gray said the NCIC and limited, court-approved use of electronic wiretaps "conforms strictly with law by Congress to facilitate an all-out effort against organized crime."

"This technique is employed not only with the approval of the attorney general," he said, "but with the specific authorization, in each instance, of a federal judge."

Gray said he did not intend to try and stop each person's criticism of the FBI. "We do not pretend to be infallible. We continually evaluate and re-evaluate our performance to insure that it is relevant to the needs of a constantly changing society."

He ended saying he expected the FBI to be judged "harshly, but fairly . . . and on the facts, not on the fiction."

After the speech, there was some discrepancy over what Gray said.

"I don't believe anything he says," said one student.

"That's OK," said another. "He didn't say anything anyway."

or at least for the way things always seem to go in Aggieland.

My first cheer is for the student(s) who "picked up" my wife's chemistry lab notebook. She had been gone from class only a few minutes, but that was more than ample time for sticky fingers to snatch their prey. The person who said, "Aggies don't lie, cheat or steal," must not have had this individual in mind.

My second cheer is for the graduate assistant lab prof who sympathetically gave her two days to turn in a completed notebook: by 5 p.m. Friday. After all, what are five chemistry lab experiments to write up when you only have two other majors to worry about? Any chemistry fan knows that organic labs can be written up in no time.

My final cheer is for the system stat: while demanding a teaching certificate from a second grade elementary teacher, allows him to teach without one (said certificate vouching for at least a slight ability to deal with students in an acceptable manner). P. C. Chase

Editor: Just ignore those knocks and gigs. I like Cadet Slouch and SCONA. It's true I seldom get to hear any of the speakers, because I live in Somerville and can't make a trip of this distance twice every day, but occasionally I do and I'm glad anyway for the availability of these things.

My only complaint is that sometime, when I receive the Battalion, I read that something I would have attended, took place the night before.

Nader vs. Gray

(Continued from page 1) face. We are a microcosm of society at large. Coming from different backgrounds; holding different key assumptions about the purpose of life and the nature of the individual, we can do no more than compromise, hopefully to define the point at which society's controls allow the greatest amount of personal freedom. And hopefully to alarm others, as we have been alarmed, that certain controls imposed by our society may now have gone beyond that point.

Knowing as little about Texas A&M as A&M students know about Occidental College, I must confess to being mildly amazed to find a conference on "The Controlled Society" being held at a former and still partly military university.

After all, isn't the military the shining example of subjugation of individualism to society's goals? The model of bureaucratization? A major threat to personal liberty in its maintenance of data files on civilians? Can we not point out the military as a prime generator of the alarmism that prompted the topic of SCONA XVIII?

Answer these questions as dictated by your personal frame of reference. But I believe that here lies the point of the conference and its topic. It's still us discussing and determining the controls, and not the controllers.
