Some House members are expected to argue for the restoration of the M'Naghten Rule.

The other controversial amendment is one that would permit evidentiary searches. Under the present code, search warrants are authorized only for "the fruits of the crime." This amendment would permit law enforcement officers to go beyond that.

The proposed code divides crime into three classes of felony and ures.

Each class carries a specific punishment range.

Unlike the present code, which sets a separate penalty for each crime, the new code would simply classify each crime as one of the felonies or misdemeanors, automatically giving it the punishment authorized for that category.

Capital punishment, abortion and drugs are not handled by the new code because of their controversial nature. They will be dealt with as separate meas-the state's top elective offices would be limited to spending about $1 million apiece under a bill approved Monday by the House Elections Committee.

Tuesday, May 1, 1973

It would be Texas' first state office campaign expense law. In last year's election, Gov. Dolph Briscoe spent about $2.5 million to get elected.

The bill, by Rep. Joe Pentony, D-Houston, would break down expenses on a cents-per-voter ratio.

Candidates for governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general could spend a maximum of 3.5 cents per person in a primary election and the same in a general election. They could spend 1.75 cents per person for a runoff.

If a gubernatorial candidate were involved in a primary, a runoff, and a general election, that would amount to about $1 million, Pentony said.

Allotments for other state offices would be proportionately less. Candidates for statewide offices could spend 1.75 cents for primary and general elections, and .85 cents for runoffs.

District elections, with less population involved, would have a limit of 10 cents per person for primaries and general elections and 5 cents for runoffs.

Under Pentony's bill, the expenses would apply to all forms of advertising, including broadcast and print media.

Indochina Aid Bill Presented

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon today sent a $2.9-billion foreign aid program to Congress. It included $632 million for reconstruction in Indochina.

However, the projected fiscal 1974 program did not include any funds for rehabilitation in North Vietnam. The Indochina aid was limited entirely to South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

The 1974 proposal of $2.9 billion compares to a $2.6-billion foreign aid program that has been in effect under a continuing resolution for nearly two years.
