YRs Disown Sharborough Statements

Editor:
We the undersigned Young Republicans who were not consulted by Beau Sharborough prior to his intemperate and ill considered remark, will reply here categorically.

The Watergate affair was a "third-rate robbery" attempt by bungling incompetents. We think it appropriate for the President to be "appalled" that former members of the Committee to Re-elect the President were involved in such a stupid and unethical endeavor.

The President refused to allow his staff to be subpoenaed by the Congress because it is not a judicial body and it sought only to politically embarrass his administration. However the President has given full cooperation to the judiciary whose responsibility criminal matters are.

In light of the President's initiatives in reducing world tension, the Watergate affair is trivial and had consumed too much of his time. Unfortunately, it was necessary for him to become involved because the aides in whom he had complete trust had failed to deserve the confidence.

Contrary to Sharborough's comments about Nixon's insincerity, we have complete confidence in his integrity and his will to have all the facts made known about Watergate.

Just a word from someone who was at the Spring Gas street dance and had a great time. Stump, formerly Phoenix, of Austin put on an excellent display of their talent at one of the best programs I've seen here all year. In fact, a few more of these type dances would make me seriously consider spending more weekends here. A girl to dance with would really do the trick, but that's another story.

I was shocked to read in Listen-Up the other day that some people thought a majority of the students didn't like the dance! Everyone I talked to and saw at the dance was thrilled to have something as fun as this to do on a Friday night. I can see, however, how anyone not caring for rock-and-roll would not have enjoyed the dance. But I can not see how anyone could object to the band drummer spending a maximum of three minutes (a lecture?) out of a four hour program to comment on an issue of current interest. He was aware of the conservative nature of his audience and so merely pointed out that those who felt strongly about marijuana laws should express their opinion to legislature—fair enough?

I'm not sure who was responsible for the dance but on behalf of those of us who loved it—Thanks! Do it again!!

When the starting gun sounded for the first event of intramural swim meet Thursday night, the four members of the Crocker Hall swim team were not in the lineup. They had turned in one of their forms too late and were not allowed to enter. The "persons" talked to at the intramural office stated something to the effect that "if the Crocker team was allowed to swim everyone would have to be allowed to swim." But isn't that the purpose of intramurals—to allow everyone to participate in sports? We of the Crocker Hall swim team think so.

Ellsberg Trial Hunt Testimony Ordered To L. A.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—E. Howard Hunt's testimony before a Washington D.C., grand jury about an alleged burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office was ordered turned over to the Pentagon papers trial judge Thursday.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica in Washington ordered the action after Judge Matt Byrne in Los Angeles demanded the government tell him anything Hunt told the Washington grand jury about the alleged burglary.

Prosecutors told Judge Sirica during a brief hearing in Washington that Hunt, a convicted Watergate conspirator, had testified about the burglary. Sirica ordered relevant portions of the grand jury minutes forwarded to Judge Byrne.

We admit that we made a mistake in turning our form in late, but we also think that the intramural office should completely re-evaluate its priorities. We definitely think that the student's sports participation should have priority over paper work.

Each spring the campus comes alive with recruiters trying to talk students into selling dictionaries, Bibles, etc., in some other state during the summer. This is definitely an experience because we have all done it. However, there are some things we feel that those contemplating this type work this summer should know. We feel most students who do this type of work are interested in making money. What is really important is not how much money you make but how much you are able to save. Our personal observation is that most students who do this work are not able to save much.

It appears among Aggies that roughly 50 per cent who start this type work come home before the summer is over. Among those who stay the whole summer, many make enough to come home and that is about it.

What really gripes us is that some students who are paying their way through school attempt this type of work believing, as they have been told by the recruiter(s), that the failure rate is approximately 5%. We personally know of friends who were students at A&M who are not here now because they didn't make money in the summer in this type of work. We know of others who are enrolled only because they are

Bikes Must Be Moved In 2 Weeks

Bicycles left in racks over two weeks after the end of finals will be cut loose from their chains and stored by the University Police. Students may reclaim them at no charge when they return.

Chief O. L. Luther has asked students to bring the correct license plate number and drivers license number when they return in the fall if they plan to register a car on campus. Luther said that many of the forms turned in during pre-registration were incomplete.

Students will again be required to register their bicycles with the University Police next fall.

working now, including some of us.

These recruiters in the past have preyed predominantly on freshmen because they are considered "too dumb" to ask questions. Most upperclassmen generally are not willing to admit that they did this work and didn't make money at it.

We suggest that if you are considering this type of job this summer that you talk with some upperclassmen who have been—besides your recruiter(s). It may help you finalize your plans for this summer.

LAST YEAR FOREST FIRES DESTROYED 200 TREES FASTER THAN YOU CAN READ THIS AD.

Unless you're a speed reader, it should take you about 20 seconds to read this ad. Which is about 5 words per second. Forest fire, in that same amount of time, will have ravaged and burned over 200 trees. Which is about 2 trees for every word you read. Or by the time you finish this sentence, 118 trees. And does the damage add up! In a year's time that's over 420 million trees, over 4 million acres burned, and hundreds of thousands of animals left homeless. Not to forget the ecological havoc forest fire will have wreaked where it passed. And it's all such a senseless waste too. Because with only a little time, most man-caused forest fires could be prevented. An extra second to grind out a cigaret. Another minute to pour more water on your fire, scatter the coals, cover it with dirt. A moment to refresh yourself on fire safety. A few extra minutes can save years of growth. And that's time well spent on saving our forests. Just like reading this ad.

PLEASE: HELP PREVENT FOREST FIRES.
