Stark Named CCE Director

Stephen L. Stark has become associate director of the Center for Community Education at A&M.

He also serves as visiting lecturer in the Educational Administration Department, announced Dr. Harold L. Hawkins, head.

Stark, formerly of Ohio, began duties July 1.

He assists Dr. Robert Berridge in operation of the Community Education Center and teaches off-campus.

The A&M Center serves as a three-state focal point of community education, through which school districts organize programs of community-wide involvement.

Stark, 29, has had seven years of community education experience in Springfield, Ohio. He held positions as principal, community education coordinator and director of community education.

Under his guidance, the Springfield project grew from three to 21 schools.

Stark has just completed a one-year Community Education Fellowship in Flint, Mich.

The former Texarkana, Texas, teacher and coach graduated from Morehead State University in 1967. His M.A. is from Ball State. Stark is candidate for the doctor of education at Western Michigan University.

He attended Texarkana Junior College in 1962-64 under athletic scholarship and also studied at Ohio State.
