

Elliott Refuses Payment For Mistaken Identities

HOUSTON (AP) — County Judge Bill Elliott said Tuesday no public funds will be authorized to pay for costs resulting from the mistaken identity of four mass murder victims until it is determined who was at fault.

The four were among the 27 victims of a homosexual-murder case that broke Aug. 8 when Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, told police he had shot and killed Dean Corll, 33. Henley and a co-defendant, David Owen Brooks, 18, later told police Corll was the mastermind of the three-year procurement - torture - murder scheme.

Bodies of two youths believed to have been brothers, Jerry Lynn Waldrop, 13, and Donald Waldrop, 15, were buried Aug. 18 near Atlanta, Ga., after having been discovered in a boat stall Corll rented in southwest Houston.

Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, Harris County medical examiner, announced Friday, however, that the bodies buried in Atlanta actually were those of David Hilligiest, 13, and Gregory Malley Winkle, 16, both of Houston. He said the bodies of the Waldrop brothers still were in the county morgue.

Of the 18 bodies identified so far, 15 resided in or formerly resided in Houston's Heights area. Another of the identified resided in southwest Houston but attended a driving school where Henley also was enrolled.

The Waldrop brothers resided in the Heights when they disappeared in January 1971. The Hilligiest and Winkle boys also resided in the Heights.

Jachimczyk blamed the identification mixup on information provided by Everett Waldrop, father of the two brothers.

"Mr. Waldrop drove here from Atlanta," Jachimczyk said. "He described the clothing, height

TAMSS to Hold First Meeting 7:30 Tonight

Texas A&M Scholastic Services will hold a meeting tonight at 7:30 in room 225 of the Memorial Student Center.

According to Shahid Hosan, TAMSS chairman, the organization has decided to do away with its policy of letting students tutor for only one year. Subsequently, all of last year's tutors are asked to attend the meeting in order to pick up their Honor Student Tutors Card.

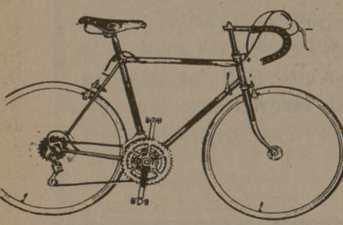

Also included in the agenda will be the selection of dorm and campus section representatives. Those students attending the meeting will be asked to supply a trial schedule of hours and days they will be free to tutor.

Tutoring sessions are run by members of Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda, freshman honor societies. Registration for students desiring assistance with courses will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the MSC and the library.

and dental records of his missing sons, and the two bodies fit the description. We released them to him on that description."

Waldrop claims the wrong bodies were sent to Georgia and that he did not mistakenly identify the bodies.

Jachimczyk said he personally believes "we should help pay the costs" of disinterment and shipment of the bodies back to Houston but that he is not certain where the money would come from.

The four other members of the Harris County Commissioners Court headed by Elliott indicated agreement with Elliott.

"If it was not the fault of the county, the county is under no obligation to pay," said commissioner Tom Bass.

Commissioners Jamie Bray and Bob Eckels said possible use of county funds is a matter to be decided by County Atty. Joe Resweber.

"I'd go along with the attorney either way," Eckels said. "If the court could decide as it wished, I would be worried about what precedent we might set. I would not want to pay unless the bodies were in the county morgue."

Modern Dance Club Organizes On Campus

A modern dance club will organize Thursday at Texas A&M. The 6:30 p.m. meeting will be in the third floor gym of G. Rollie White Coliseum, announced John Steele.

Steele and eight other students are helping get the organization under way. He said the group has programs tentatively set for fall semester in productions that require dancers.

Kay Don, instructor in the Health and Physical Education Department, sponsors the club.

Steele is an education senior of Refugio who played and danced in the Amarillo amphitheater production "Texas" during the summer. He works with the Aggie Players.

He said the Thursday meeting will enable interested students to elect club officers and draw by-laws based on what the organization wants to do. Information is available at the Required Physical Education Office, 845-5924.

Reception for Retired Dean To Be Held

An informal reception will be held for retired Dean of Students James P. Hannigan at 3 p.m. Thursday in Room 228 of the Memorial Student Center.

The get-together will be sponsored by the Student Government with the aid of the Alpha Zeta Chapter of Omegas.

"The reception is for the benefit of students who have worked with Dean Hannigan in the past and who wish to congratulate him on his retirement," said Randy Ross, student body president, "and all students are invited to attend."

some sort of obligation could be established."

Commissioner E. A. Lyons said he also would approve paying the costs should Resweber hold that such an expenditure would be legal.

Asst. Dist. Donald Lambricht and Resweber talked informally about the situation Monday but Resweber said no advice was given.

"And I'm not going to give any opinion on whether Dr. Jachimczyk or anyone else was at fault," Resweber said. "That calls for a determination of fact, and my job is to answer questions about the law. So far as I know, the county is not empowered to give tax money away."

A&M Program Boosted by EPA Grant

A training program at A&M received a boost with a grant from the Environmental Protection Agency, announced Cong. Olin E. (Tiger) Teague.

The program, which trains graduate students in waste water treatment and aquatic systems management, is offered by the Environmental Engineering Division of the Civil Engineering Department.

Directed by Dr. Roy Hann Jr., the program has been funded for more than eight years by EPA and previously by the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration and the Public Health Service.

The training program is designed to prepare scientists and engineers for active roles in the water pollution control field through a system of academic course work and research development.

More than 60 graduate students have been supported through the program. Grants total more than $500,000 since initial funding was awarded in September, 1964.

The program, administered by the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, received $46,000 in additional funds for operation through the 1973-74 academic year. Nine graduate students will have support from the program in the coming year.
