Dean H. L. Heaton Dead at Age 67

H. L. Heaton, A&M dean emeritus of admissions and records, died Wednesday in a local hospital following a long illness.

Funeral services for the 67-year-old native of Panola County will be held at 3 p. m. Friday at the First Baptist Church in Bryan. He will be in College Station Wednesday under the direction of the Way-Jones Funeral Home.

Heaton's career at TAMU spanned 38 years, 1934 to 1972. During this period he signed more than 50,000 diplomas—over three-quarters of the total conferred during the institution's 97-year history.

Heaton came to A&M in 1933 as a graduate student after earning a B.S. degree at Stephen F.

H. L. Heaton

Austin State Teachers College in 1929. At the time Heaton entered TAMU, he was one of only 92 students seeking advanced degrees.

The former TAMU administrator was named assistant registrar in 1934. He completed his graduate studies on a one-course-at-a-time basis and received his master's degree in 1936.

Heaton was appointed registrar in 1941, and his title was changed to director of admissions and registrar in 1956. He became TAMU's first dean of admissions and records when the position was created in 1969.

Dean Heaton was a member and former officer of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers and member and past president of the Texas Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.

Heaton is survived by his daughter, Miss Kathleen Heaton, a teacher in the Bryan Public School System, and one son, Dr. Charles L. Heaton, a professor on the medical staff at the University of Pennsylvania College of Medicine and Philadelphia General Hospital.

He was married to the former Miss Bessie Blanton, who died three years ago. The TAMU Association of Former Students established the H. Lloyd and Bessie Heaton Memorial Scholarship shortly after the death of Mrs. Heaton.

Senate Nixes Edwards

By VICKIE ASHWILL

The Student Senate denied Chet Edwards an appointment as chairman of the judicial board in its first fall meeting Wednesday night. Edwards was defeated in a roll call vote of 46-27, three short of the required two-thirds majority.

During the discussion, Edwards reassured senators that he would not become politically involved with campus election if he was given the position. Edwards also said his other activities had never before and would not interfere with his job as judicial board chairman.

The economics and philosophy major carries a 3.7 GPR and is presently executive vice president for the Memorial Student Center. He is a member of many University Committees and was chairman of SCONA XVIII.

The senate did approve three other appointments for the judicial board. These positions were filled by Chris Kling, graduate economics major; Russell Hamley, sophomore building construction major and Doug Hegi, sophomore bio-chemistry major.

In other action, senators approved a petition urging College Station to hold a special election concerning the method for selecting city council members.

The two systems of concern are the at-large system presently in use and the use of a ward system previously used in the area.

Ron Miori, who introduced the bill, pointed out that the ward system would give better representation to the various factions of the city.

"At this time, five of the seven city council members live within a few blocks of each other," said

Miori. "Students should also be given a chance for better representation since they, too, contribute to city sales tax."

Barb Sears presented and received approval for a petition asking the city to move the precinct and city polling places on campus to the University Center.

Located in G. Rollie White Coliseum and the Cushing Library, respectively, these polling places have not had the patronage they should have, according to Sears. Sears also said it would be better to have both polling places in one location.

Curt Marsh introduced a by-

laws revision to the senate to be approved at the next meeting. The bill officially puts into words the established tradition in the senate preventing a vote on a bill until the second reading.

This by-law could be surpassed by the approval of the executive committee or by a majority vote of the senate present and voting.

Marsh also presented three constitutional amendments to the body which "will provide more legislative remedy so the senate will have more power to reprimand members of its body."

The amendments, to be voted on at the next meeting, would give the senate the power to remove senators from office who are placed on conduct or scholastic probation. The third amendment will provide for the punishment of senators for disorderly behavior.

Sears briefed the senators on the costs and reasons behind rejoining the National Student Lobby, the Texas Intercollegiate Student Association and the Texas Student Lobby.

Sears, a member of the NSL Board of Directors from region II, said it would cost $275 to join

Campus Fund Seeks Student Donations

When the going gets tough, Aggies have long been known for helping each other out.

With the beginning of football season Saturday, the Campus Chest drive, another Alpha Phi Omega-Student Government project, will get underway.

Fifty-five gallon drums painted blue and gold will be at each of the gates of Kyle Field before and after the game, hopefully to be filled by the coins of generous Aggies.

"The money which is collected is placed in an account and is available to students in emergencies when substantial sums of money are needed immediately," said David White, Student Government treasurer. "Sometimes the money is granted to students and at other times, it is lent to them."

The Texas A&M chapter of APO has been working with the campaign since its founding in 1962.

"Campus Chest is at least that old and has helped many troubled Aggies since its beginning," said Walter Davis, APO.

Last year, a married student fell from a pole during bonfire construction and severely hurt his back requiring extensive surgery. Since the accident occurred a few hours before insurance covered student workers, he was not eligible for benefits.

"The Campus Chest account helped him meet the medical expenses he incurred," recalled Davis.

According to White, the account currently contains $450. In order to receive assistance, a student must apply in the Student Government office and final approval will be given by White.

Sports Special Slated Friday

Bus Changes Expected

Shuttle Bus riders should expect a few changes in their service.

The Shuttle Bus Committee met Wednesday in an effort to correct bus problems ranging from routing, noise, and pollution to financing.

Currently, 2,026 shuttle bus passes have been issued, leaving the program approximately $16,000 short of the funding figure, according to Dean of Men Charles Powell, committee chairman.

Powell also said that are contracted to run 80 hours a day but they would need to run 15 hours less each day in order to meet the present financial situation.

"A reserve (of hours) is presently being built due to a shortage in drivers," said Powell. "The buses have only been running about 60 hours each day."

In order to determine the most efficient way to run the buses without going in the red, the committee will conduct a survey Tuesday and Wednesday to determine how many students are riding the buses and at what hours.

"This is the first time A&M worked on reforming marijuana laws, 18-year-old majority rights, tuition equalization, students on University Boards of Directors and abortion law reform.

Randy Stephens and Steve Gray were approved by the senators for position on the Student Government Radio Board of Directors. Both are knowledgeable in the radio field and have been working with the board all summer.

'Ineffectiveness' Charged by Hobby

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby attacked the "ineffectiveness" of state government Wednesday night at the Brazos County A&M Club meeting at the Zarape Restaurant.

Hobby attributed this inefficiency to the lack of a powerful executive branch in Texas. "This is a five billion dollar a year business without an executive branch. A new constitution will give the governor the power to execute the responsibility of chief officer of the state."

Hobby then cited the Texas welfare system as a target for explaining his point. "A person is selected by a three-man board, you don't elect him to allocate your money for welfare recipients. The governor should be held responsible for this system."

He said that if Texas developed a strong executive branch, the state would be more responsive to the people.

"In a recent poll, Texas ranks with Alabama in having one of the weakest systems."

Hobby also introduced the concept of program budgeting. "We allocate to 180 state agencies and there are many duplications of these. We have no way of knowing which programs are cost productive."

He stressed the most important new project of government called the Zero Base Budget. Pioneered by Texas Instruments of Dallas, Texas received this plan from Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia. The Zero Budget idea saved the state $55 million.

"We're going to save a bunch of money," Hobby stressed.

The Zero Budget plan was developed in part by Harry Ledbetter of the Lt. Governor's office and initially presented to Hobby by John Sharp, a former student body president of A&M ('71).

The purpose of this new budget is to better allocate money within state agencies and show how each program functions. It will measure output and serve as a management tool for every project.

"This will also give elected officials an opportunity to give input to the state agency, for the first time."

A catalogue of every program will be kept and ranged in priority according to effectiveness.

"We're going to earn the $4,800 a year you taxpayers pay," he concluded.

Herb Gersbach presented Hobby with a pipe holder and a certificate of appreciation to Jose Montemayor, owner of the Zarape. Montemayor donated the revenues of the meeting back into the scholarship fund.

Ed Cooper, A&M dean of admissions, announced the recipient of the 1973 Hobby Opportunity Scholarship. Greg Beeley, a first year vet student, was presented with the award.

campus than on," said Powell. "Everyone is going to have to support the service in order for it to survive."

"I think students would be happier to ride the bus than to spend 30 minutes looking for a parking place," said Roger Miller, committee member.

In reference to the difficulties encountered at the University of Texas, the problem of the noise level was introduced. It was pointed out that the decibel level of the buses was 88 and federal standards are 90.

Bob McMinn, a Transportation Enterprises, Inc. representative, said his company has talked with the manufacturer about this and is trying to solve the problem as economically as possible.

"We try to keep the drivers as happy and as healthy as possible," said McMinn. McMinn added that the new maroon and white buses would also have a sound problem.

The meeting brought about the development of a panel to hear complaints from unsatisfied students. The panel, to be chaired by Randy Richards, will also make decisions on refunds.

Several bus routes were re-routed in order not to leave out any students yet to provide a quicker route. Students having problems with buses or drivers should record the bus number, the time and the location of the incident before they make a complaint.

The committee has asked that students enter the front of the bus and leave from the rear so that passes can be checked. Night route maps are available to students in Dean Powell's office and in the security office.

Nixon Veto Sustained By Five Vote Margin

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon scored a tight five-vote victory in a showdown Wednesday in the House on a vetoed medical services bill. It left Nixon unbeaten by Congress this year in five veto fights.

The vote was 273 favoring a veto to override the President's veto over Nixon's objections, 144 supporting the President's rejection of the bill, and one member voting "present." This was five votes short of the required two-thirds majority.

While the Senate had voted 77-16 last month to override, or more than the necessary two-thirds, the action by the House means the legislation is dead.

President Nixon expressed his assurance at the House action. A White House statement said the President feels those who voted to sustain the veto "deserve the thanks of all Americans for their wisdom" and for joining in his efforts of fighting inflation.

Six Democrats joined 138 Republicans in support of the President, while 227 Democrats and 46 Republicans voted to override the veto.

The bill would have authorized $185 million for new federal aid programs designed to develop emergency medical service systems aimed at preventing needless deaths of heart attack and accident victims. Nixon vetoed it Aug. 1, saying it was too costly and infringing on the role of state and local governments.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee and chief author of the vetoed bill, said the legislation was aimed at saving thousands of lives by providing personnel.

Pianist Performs Tuesday Evening

James Fields, concert pianist, will perform at the University Center Theater, Tuesday at 8 p.m. The concert will be presented by the Town Hall Young Artist Series in conjunction with the Leventritt Foundation.

Fields made his orchestral debut with the Los Angeles Philharmonic at the age of 10. Since then, he has been asked back to play several times including a performance at the Hollywood Bowl in 1963, and a return engagement during the 1965 season performing under the baton of Milton Katins.

In 1965, Fields was recipient of the National Young Musicians Foundations Debut Award and has since performed several times with their Debut Orchestra.

He has played numerous recitals throughout the United States and Europe and made a trip behind the Iron Curtain in 1968 to perform the closing concert of the Dubrovnik Festival in Yugoslavia.

Currently, Fields is teaching at Occidental College in Los Angeles and studies at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. He is a student of Rudolph Serkin and Mieczyslaw Horowitz. Fields previously studied with Madame Ethel Leginska, Victor Aller and composition under Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco.

Kathlyn Russell of the Daily Times-Advocate of Escondido, Calif., says of Fields, "He can be more casual in his interpretation of the composer's markings and still put his eloquent point across."
