President Allende Buried; Street Fighting Reported

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The new military junta buried Salvador Allende Wednesday and warned armed supporters of the dead Marxist president that they'll be "shot on the spot if taken prisoner."

Explosions were heard in some industrial neighborhoods and snipers, barricaded in office buildings, exchanged fire with military patrols in the streets below.

The streets of this city of three million were empty of civilians because of a curfew imposed after the military revolt Tuesday. Many people have been stranded in office buildings and hotels—none allowed to leave even to return to their homes or to obtain food and drink. All businesses were closed.

First indications in the coup's aftermath were that casualties were numerous. But there was no way to determine the exact number of dead or wounded. Military authorities, who control the only radio stations allowed to broadcast made no mention of any figures. Newsmen received reports of gunfights between soldiers and armed workers occupying factories to protest the coup, which toppled the Western Hemisphere's first freely elected Marxist government.

Allende had called on workers at the start of the coup to occupy factories in defense of his three-year-old government. It was his last message. The military junta said Wednesday that the 65-year-old Allende, who dedicated his life to politics, had killed himself as troops closed in on the presidential palace.

Chile's ambassador to Britain, Alvaro Bunster, said in London that he doubted the junta's version. "I don't think President Allende committed suicide," he said. "If he is dead, he has been killed. Only a few weeks ago Allende said he would not commit suicide whatever happened."

The Peronist newspaper El Mundo in Buenos Aires, Argentina, said it had learned from one of Allende's bodyguards that Allende was killed.

Police officials threatened to "blow up buildings if necessary" to silence snipers.

Computer Center Lowers Use Rates

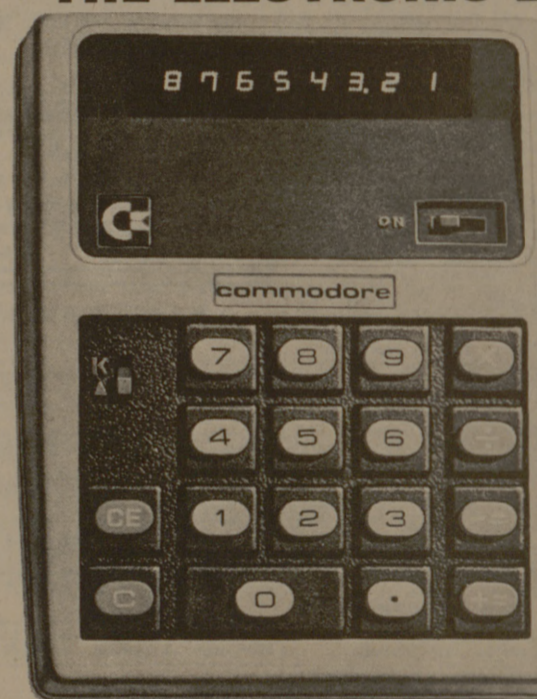

The Data Processing Center, a subdivision of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, recently announced the lowering of its computer rates for all academic and research work. The new rates went into effect the new fiscal year. The DPC is anticipating greater computer usage resulting from the considerably lower rates as compared to last year. Dr. Dick B. Simmons, DPC director, has separated the new rates into the following categories:

- (1) For using the computer during the 1st shift or prime time, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, the new rate is $288 per hour, the previous rate being $325 per hour.
- (2) The new rate for usage during the 2nd shift, 5:00 p.m. to 8:00 a.m., Monday through Friday, is $216 per hour. The previous rate was $325 per hour.
- (3) The rate for zero priority jobs, 12 midnight to 8:00 a.m., Monday through Friday and as time is available on weekends and holidays, is presently $108 per hour. The rate for zero priority last year was $200 per hour.

The DPC, in cooperation with the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs, has made available free computer time on a first come, first serve basis. Beginning Monday the DPC will establish a Happy Hour from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. every Sunday through Thursday. During this time all short autobatch jobs, WATFIV, WATBOL, SPASM and ASSIST, are to be run free of charge. The service is available to all students. A special Data Processing Service Request (DPSR) number has been designated for Happy Hour runs. Instructions on the use of Happy Hour are posted in the remote centers of the DPC. These centers are the RCC located in the Cushing Building, and the TCC located in the basement of the O. E. Teague Building.
