DAR Objects to Textbooks

AUSTIN (CP) — Jill was missing. She was a princess. You could tell because she lived in a palace. A lad rescued her from a tower and a dragon. He took her back to the palace on his horse.

"Typical stereotyping of a male saving a female," objected a representative of a women's rights group, who want "Jill" eliminated from a boxed set of first grade readers.

Barbara Glenn of San Antonio opposed "Jill" and numerous other story books Monday at a hearing on proposed textbooks before State Education Commissioner J. W. Edgar. She represented the Continuing Task Force for Education for Women.

Mrs. R. C. Bearden Jr. of San Angelo spoke for the Daughters of the American Revolution, chiefly opposing several series of readers for what she called insufficient emphasis on patriotism.

Testimony before Edgar is expected to last a week, since the commissioners has imposed no time limit and 142 books out of 316 under consideration have been protested. Anyone who wants to testify at the State Textbook Committee's Oct. 9 hearing — which does have a time limit — must appear first before the commissioner.

The committee will make its recommendations, subject to final approval by the State Board of Education, Oct. 10. Local school districts will make their choices from the final list of adoptions.

"Jill" and several other paperback books in Ginn & Co.'s "Magic Circle" readers for grades 1-3 foster stereotyped views of female behavior and roles, Mrs. Glenn said.

She also criticized supplemental readers offered by several other publishers.

In a book called "the Runaway Camper," Ms. Glenn objected because "the father drives the camper and the mother sits in the middle. Why can't mother drive for a change?"

Ms. Glenn said numerous books portrayed women only as mothers and housewives and girls as helpless, passive and easily frightened.

"It is the subtle kind of thing that is lodged back in their minds," she said.

Volleyball, Tennis, Handball, Golf Open Intramural Sports

By MARY RUSSO

Volleyball, handball, team tennis and team golf will start play in the intramural arena this week.

Although the Corps and men's dorms have been banging heads for a week; the girls, Corps fish and off-campus teams start playing the pigskin within the week.

Class A football could prove to be interesting as the Corps' upperclassmen play predictably in their games.

In League A, L2 looks big, fast and with Dossey quarterbacking and Hank playing defensive end, the team plays well together showing previous experience. Although L1 and H2 are tied in rank for League 2, L1's scores have been consistently higher than any team in the class, let alone the league. They have literally stomped everyone they've played into the ground both offensively and defensively.

With Tom Leopold as quarterback and Gordon Steward set as his receiver, F1 covers ground with a practiced passing attack. League C should claim F1 as their champion. League D finds B1 leader because of this team's ability to relate to each other like they've been up this alley before.

Again, it's the story of a quarterback and receiver in League E. Bill Stanton as QB and Keith Wilcox are a remarkable team for their long bombs. In League

F, C2 and D1 are ranking ahead of everyone, but C2 has a good quarterback, receiver and are generally bigger than D1.

In League G it should be a close race between A1 and Squadron 13-12. Both are about equal in both offense and defense.

In Class C, there are two teams tied in each league. League A shows Dunn and Law in first place. Both need to work and this could be a case of who can improve the fastest. League B has Davis-Gary and Hotard neck and neck for first place. Both are fairly strong offensively.

League C is the only one with a fairly obvious choice for first. Both Walton and Milner are tied in first but Walton looks like they've got it all together and work as a team, while Milner can't get its plays coordinated.

Team tennis has already started with results in this paper. Deadlines are approaching rapidly for team bowling, open racketball singles, open handball singles, and open pocket billiards. September 26 is the day and 5 p.m., the time.

'Yellow Sub'
To Be Shown
Thursday

"Yellow Submarine" will be presented by the Arts Committee Film Series of the Memorial Student Center Thursday night in Room 102 of the Zachry Engineering Center.

The film will be shown at 8 p.m. and again at 10 p.m.

Also on the program will be the cartoon "Betty in Blunderland" and "Y," an animated fairy tale.

Admission will be $1 at the door.

Movies will be shown on Tuesday or Thursday throughout October and November. "Chrome Ethic" starring Aggie Paul Bleau will be shown later in the semester. The Film Series Committee will be choosing films on a week to week basis and suggestions are welcomed.

TIGHT END RICHARD OSBORNE snares a Mike Jay pass in A&M's 48-0 rout of Wichita State Saturday night. Osborne later scored one of A&M's seven touchdowns.

PEANUTS By Charles M. Schulz

His wife had always hated his work.

"You'll never make any money growing toadstools," she complained.

"On the contrary," he declared. "My toadstool business is mushrooming!"

She creamed him with the electric toaster.
