did you ever tell a lie so convincingly that even you believed it

JOY

IT'S A CONFUSING WORLD. AN HONEST MAN KNOWS HOW EASILY HE CAN CONVINCE HIMSELF OF A LIE AS THOUGH IT WERE THE TRUTH. SO HOW CAN A PERSON EVER DISTINGUISH LIES FROM THE TRUTH? THAT'S PART OF WHAT CHRISTIANS ARE CONVINCED HAS HAPPENED IN CHRIST... THE GREAT TRUTH OF GOD'S LOVE HAS FILTERED THROUGH CHRIST'S LIFE AND DEATH AND RESURRECTION. JOIN US FOR AN EXPLORATION OF THAT POSSIBILITY. WE'D LIKE TO HAVE YOU WITH US IN THIS "SORTING OUT" PROCESS OF LIFE.

Riggs, King Battle with Words

HOUSTON (AP)—Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King got into an eyeball-to-eyeball, name-calling joust Wednesday on the eve of their $100,000 winner-take-all tennis battle of the sexes, which broke into a squabble over whether Bobby "is a creep."

"I don't mind you calling me a hustler, chauvinist pig or egomaniac," the 55-year-old Riggs told his 29-year-old woman adversary. "But you shouldn't call me a creep. It is not a nice word."

Billie Jean didn't budge an inch. "It is not such a bad word in Beverly Hills," she replied. That was as far as she would go.

"I think she should have apologized, but she didn't," Riggs said. He said that Billie Jean used the term in a national magazine article.

Riggs and Billie appeared for a 30-minute press conference in the bubble outside the Astrodome where their match will take place.

It was their first confrontation since reaching Houston.

Asked how she felt about Riggs, who triggered this highly publicized match with his derisive comments about women in general and women's tennis in particular, Billie Jean said: "I like him and I hate him. He is so ridiculous. Sometimes I laugh, but mostly I get furious."

Making a prediction about the match, Billie Jean said she expected the best-of-five match to go only three sets. She left no doubt who she thought would win it.

Riggs said, "She expects to scrape me off the Astrodome floor. I will scrape her up. She is a woman and is subject to women's emotional frailties. She will crack up during the match."

The pill-gulping Riggs is a 5-2 favorite.

Earlier, Billie Jean had been no worse than an 8-5 underdog against Riggs, who shamed Margaret Court in their Mother's Day battle in San Diego May 13.

The best-of-five set duel with optic yellow tennis balls, which has excited and divided a nation, is scheduled at 7 p.m. CDT over a synthetic green carpet.

The match will be shown nationally by ABC-TV and to some 40 countries overseas via satellite. Europeans will have to stay up until after midnight to view it.

Television sponsors reportedly paid $90,000 a minute for commercial TV time.

Billie Jean became ill and defaulted in a third-round match in the recent U.S. Open at Forest Hills, but the five-time Wimbledon women's champion showed up on the scene early this week and announced in a loud voice: "I am fine, physically and mentally. I am ready. All I can say is Bobby had better be ready, too."

While Mrs. King has remained in virtual seclusion, avoiding all the fanfare and gimmickry associated with the unique promotion, Bobby has been swinging wildly on a merry-go-round of parties, public appearances and late night sessions, gabbing with the press in his seventh floor suite.

A&M, LSU—Old Rivalry

One of the longest and most colorful rivalries in LSU football history adds its 37th chapter Saturday when A&M rolls into Tiger Stadium.

The Aggie-Tiger series dates back to the 19th century, 1899 to be exact, when the two schools met in College Station with A&M winning, 52-0.

Those were the days of iron-men players and iron-men schedules, since LSU was scheduled to face both Texas and Texas A&M on the road in the space of three days. The Bengals, playing only their seventh year of football, simply weren't up to the rigorous twinbill.

Over the years the teams have met only four times in College Station. The Aggies own a 3-0-1 ledger at home but the schools haven't played here since 1922.

Since that time the schools have played in Baton Rouge on all but two occasions, a 19-14 victory in the 1944 Orange Bowl in Miami and a 28-0 Aggie triumph in Dallas in 1955.

LSU has a firm 21-12-3 lead in the overall series, including an 18-6-1 edge in games played in Tiger Stadium. In games played at neutral sites, most of which were in the early part of the series, the schools are dead even at 3-3-1.

The Bengals and Aggies have met every year since 1960 and LSU has dominated this recent rivalry, winning 11 times, tying one and losing only once. LSU fans will remember the only defeat as the season opening 20-18 loss in 1970, when Lex James hit Hugh McElroy on a do-or-die 79-yard bomb for the winning touchdown with 19 seconds left in the game.

Last season LSU ran up almost 500 yards in total offense as the Tigers thumped a young Aggie squad 42-17. Cornerback Norm Hodgins, now on offense as a splitback, broke the game wide open with a 45-yard interception return for a third quarter touchdown and a 28-10 LSU lead.

The LSU-Texas A&M series has seen its share of great players, with Aggies such as Yale Lary, Gene Stallings, Jack Parden, Mo Moorman, Dave Elmen-dorf, Rolf Krueger, Tommy Maxwell and John David Crow all playing big parts in the 36 games to date.

The two teams will knock heads for the 37th time Saturday night in Tiger Stadium, and it should be a worthy addition to one of the South's great football rivalries.
