Clemson Matches A&M in Youth, Inexperience, Record

Teams Meet for First Time Saturday in Hills of South Carolina

When Texas A&M and Clemson meet for the first time in history Saturday in South Carolina, they will field remarkably similar teams.

Both are young, inexperienced and both have identical 1-2 records thus far this season. The Tigers have a new coach in Red Parker who came from the Citadel where he compiled a 39-34 record in seven years. For his debut year at Clemson he is faced with inexperience and youth at

Handball, Tennis Courts Reservations to be Required

A reservations system will go into effect Monday for use of the university's handball and tennis courts, announced Dr. Carl W. Landiss, head of the Health and hat just about Physical Education Department.

Landiss said the reservations es, the Stone system, along with the departvere big, then ment's new policy to restrict recminor group reational facilities to students, a couple d faculty and staff, was necessitatfollowing at ed by the heavy demand resultey had name ing from increased enrollment.

Both the offense and defense were stripped of their past heroes by graduation. Gone are three of the four top rushers, the leading pass receiver and three starters in the secondary.

Parker, however, came rolling in this spring and brought with him a veer offense which is called "The Tiger Triple." Usually a coach has to come in to rebuild and the first thing he looks for is a quarterback. Parker had no such

He has three capable signalcallers for the Big Red Machine in Ken Pengitore, Mark Fellers. and Mike O'Cain.

Pengitore had the most impressive spring and the senior handled the quarterbacking duties last season. But Fellers, a junior did a better job of moving his unit in the Orange-White spring game. O'Cain, a sophomore, came up from the javee unit and showed some impressive credentials in the spring drills.

Parker cites his most pressing offensive problem is a deficiency in the running back area. Senior Smiley Sanders started last year, but missed spring drills because of baseball. And Chuck Huntley and O. J. Tyler are the only other ball in varsity competition.

Redshirt sophomore George Bosse and senior Leon Fabers, a converted defensive back, will battle for the top spot at quick back with Fabers holding the slight edge at present.

Sophomore Leon Hope, a linebacker as a freshman last season, was the bright offensive star in the spring and he is listed as a starter ahead of redshirt sophomore Marvin Anderson and Huntley at strong back. Also, Ferrum JC transfer Toni Mathews might figure into the starting unit.

Clemson's strong point offensively is its receiving corps. Parker has proven players and bright newcomers at these positions.

Seniors Gordy Bengel, a twoyear starter, David Sasser and Bob Shell, along with junior Jerry Davis, are capable veterans to fill the two split receiver posts. They will be challenged by sophomores Craig Brantle and Rickey Bustle and JC transfer Jim Lanzendoen Senior Karl Andreas and sophomore Bennie Cunningham could be two of the premier tight ends in the ACC. Each blocks and catches well.

Junior lettermen Curt Buttermore and Maret Cobb both are prime candidates for starting tackle spots but will have stiff two who have even carried the competition with sophomores

Chipper Davis, Brank Bethea and defensive tackle with any playing JC transfer Ed Homonoff.

Junior Ken Peeples has moved from a starting tackle position to guard and probably will team with sophomore Gary Alexander on the other side. Senior Art Brisacher, Al Murray and sophomore Guy Lombardo and Wayne Neely are prospects. Defense was Parker's area of greatest concern in the spring because of inexperience. But defensive ends isn't a weak spot. Seniors Jeff Stocks and Bob Jones and juniors Tom Boozer, Tim Blackwelder and Guy Gehret and sophomore Dave Hughston fill those two positions adequately.

Senior Bruce Decock is the only time. Parker feels sophomore G. G. Galloway, junior Dan McBride, sophs David LeBel and George Hyams and freshman Harry Fulwood will have to come through and provide backup strength or challenge for the starting posts.

He has quality but no quantity at linebacker in junior Jimmy Williamson, senior Mike Buckner and sophomores Frank Wise and Jay Kreis, Willie Anderson and Mark Boynton will battle for the noseguard post.

In the weakened secondary, senior Marion Reeves and sophomore Lynn Carson loom as the corner favorites with Jim Ness, a returning starter, back at rover.

Sophomore Peanut Martin is destined for stardom at a safety and Ricky Brown and sophomore Mark Lee, Tom Marsik and Tony Rouse will fight for a starting safety position.

"Our immediate goal is to have a winning season. And we better believe that we can do it. I wouldn't want anyone on the squad who believed otherwise." says Parker.

"Right now, we feel there are two or three positions that might require some freshmen help. And from the credentials of some of our signees, we feel as though we have a few prospects who appear to be varsity material this fall," he concluded.

Size Unimportant On Kickoff Returns come the first sophomore to re-

That seems to be the rule of thumb among Southwest Conference kickoff return specialists, three of whom are making strong bids for the national leadership.

James Sykes, the Rice freshman who returned one 99 yards for a touchdown against Montana, had a 96-yarder against LSU last Saturday night to push his average to 42.0 yards on eight returns. Texas A&M's Carl Roaches scored on a 100-yard return of the opening kickoff against Boston College and is now averaging 31.6 yards on seven returns. And finally, defending SWC kickoff-return champ Lawrence Williams of Texas Tech has hauled eight for a 31.6-yard

They all have a few things in common — each has scored a touchdown on a return, they're all underclassmen and they prove that size doesn't mean that much in their line. Freshman Sykes is 5-11 and 180, the bruiser of the trio. Sophomore Roaches is the runt at 5-8 and 165, while junior

Williams goes 5-11 and 175.

In third place at 92.3 yards per game is Alvin Maxson, the 1971 rushing champ.

SMU continued to provide the heavy team offensive punch. The Mustangs have been little short of sensational on the ground through their three victories this season. In those three outings, SMU has posted the best, second best and fourth best rushing totals in the school's history-767 games in 59 seasons.

The old record of 376 yards was set in 1945. The Mustangs broke it with 134 yards against Santa Clara in their opener, almost matched it with 370 yards against Oregon State last week, and then broke it for the second time in three weeks Saturday by ripping Texas fullback Roosevelt Leaks Virginia Tech for 510 yards.
