

Ags Try to Halt Tech Streak

Game Possesses Historic Excitement

The A&M football squad travels to Lubbock Saturday with plans to break a five-game winning streak that Texas Tech presently holds against the Aggies.

The last Aggie win against the Red Raiders came in 1967 when Ed Hargett scored in the last seconds of the game to give the Aggies their first win of the season and the push that kept them undefeated for the rest of the year. The result was the Southwest Conference championship and a win over Alabama in the Cotton Bowl.

The Aggies would not be too unhappy to see the same results this year but a loss would interfere with Tech Plans. The Red Raiders are still looking at a Cotton Bowl berth despite having already suffered a conference loss to Texas.

The A&M-Tech game has been an historically exciting one. In 1962, Tech took a 3-0 lead with a field goal with 19 seconds left in the game. On the kickoff that followed, A&M's Dan McIlhenny ran behind tremendous blocking for 100 yards to give the Ags a 7-3 win. In 1967 Hargett, who had negative yardage total before the game, finished his 32-yard scoring run with no time left on the clock. Last year, Tech made a 68-yard drive late in the fourth quarter for a 17-14 lead and then the Aggies drove to the Tech 17 before Greg Waters intercepted a pass on the two-yard line.

Tech is sporting a 3-1 record this year with the loss to Texas coming from numerous miscues. Last week the Red Raiders were impressive with a 20-7 win over the 11th-ranked Oklahoma State Cowboys.

Leading the Tech offense this year is quarterback Joe Barnes, a pre-season all-SWC pick. Barnes passed for 1,142 yards last year to lead Tech to an 8-4 season. He is throwing less this year but enjoying it more as he is completing at a 60.5 percentage. His favorite target is Lawrence Williams who has grabbed 10 of Barnes' 23 completions this year. Last year Williams was the leading kickoff returner in the nation with 16 returns and 493 yards for a 30.8 average.

Another receiver not to be considered lightly is tight end Andre Tillman. Another pre-season All-SWC pick and an all-America candidate, Tillman was the Red Raiders' leading receiver last year with 21 receptions.

Last year's second leading receiver is back at split end in the form of Calvin Jones. The speedy Jones caught 15 passes for 255 yards and a 17-0 average.

Tech also possesses three top running backs in Rufus Myers, George Smith and John Garner. Smith was the leading Tech rusher last year with 740 yards and a 6.9 average while Myers led the Tech freshmen with 523 yards and a 5.2 average. Myers is leading the Red Raiders this season with 234 yards on 57 carries for a 4.1 average.

The offensive line consists of not much size but plenty of muscle. Outweighed by A&M's offensive line by 29 pounds per man, Tech makes up in speed what it surrenders in size. At the tackles are Freddie Chandler and Tom Ferguson with Floyd Keene and Dennis Allen at guards. At center is sophomore Jim Frasure who will be backed by senior letterman Larry Burnett.

The defense is headed by Eomet Burley, who was the only freshman to make the Tech starting unit last season. At last year's Sun Bowl, Burley became the first freshman in history to be named the game's outstanding lineman. Burley is the only returning starter in the Tech defensive line but all the other positions are occupied by lettermen. Gary Monroe is the other tackle while much-heralded David Knaus is at noseguard. At the ends are Aubrey McCain and Tommy Cones.

The linebacker slots are occupied by Tom Ryan and George Herro while Kenneth Wallace and Randy Olson are the cornerbacks. Wallace is another pre-season all-SWC selection. Greg Waters and Danny Willis are the Tech safeties with Waters the top interceptor for last year with four grabs. That makes up the Southwest Conference's top defense against the pass, giving up just 81.3 yards a game. The Aggies are throwing the SWC's top passing attack against Tech with a 135.8 yards per game average so something's got to give.

Intramural Results

Jocks Over Animals

Animal A, A1, met the Jocks, I2 and Sq14, in an important intramural football game Wednesday.

Ford Sasser ran for I2's first penetration but they were stalemated by Sq14's defense led by Drue Petrilak and Mike Freidli.

Tom Shirk punted I2 out of trouble with a 60 yard boot, but the Jock's James Gomez caught the kick to retain possession.

The Animals held off the passing game, the Jock's offensive strength. After seven plays the Jocks turned the ball over to the Animals.

Jeff Pinkerton, Animal back, was constantly held back by Bill Burkfield, but the Animals continued to move down field with the efforts of quarterback Nicky Nicoles.

Steve Taylor of the Jocks picked off an Animal pass on the three yard line and the first half ended with the Jocks having one penetration, the Animals, 0.

With Jocks in possession, the Animal defense held them in the end zone and regained the ball. Through a clipping penalty the Animals lost valuable field position and missed a chance at a much needed penetration.

The Animals took to the air, which cost them an interception by Jock Joe Henry. In a series of penalties called against both teams, I2 ended up with good field position and Taylor managed a charge and dive for a touchdown.

Mike Paugh and Pinkerton made a penetration and led the way to an apparent Animal TD. The pass was intercepted by Taylor of the Jocks with two plays remaining to give the Jocks a 6-0 win.

Longhorns Revamping Offensive Line

AUSTIN—Sophomore Will Wilcox, 6-foot-3 and 230 pounds, has replaced Bob Tresch at offensive tackle for the Texas Longhorns, completing a revamping of that position since spring training.

The spring training starters were Tresch 6-4 and 235, and Rich Thurman, 6-5 and 240. But sophomore Bob Simmons, 6-5 and 236, won the job over Thurman, and Wilcox was promoted in Tuesday's workout for the Oklahoma game Saturday.
