

U.S. Seeks Soviet Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States kept up its "diplomatic initiative" seeking help from the Soviet Union to end the Middle East fighting...

reported that Soviet Prime Minister Alexi Kosygin was in Cairo to discuss ways to end the fighting. Sir Alec Douglas-Home told the House of Commons he believed the Soviet leader was in the Egyptian capital "on a mission of peace."

Committee Holds 'Howdy Day'

An attempt by the Corps Finance Committee to revive "one of the more pleasant aspects of the Aggieland campus" was announced by Charles Wiatrowski, committee member.

"Friendliness has always been a trademark of A&M. People spoke to each other as they passed and met each other whenever they could," explained Wiatrowski.

"Unfortunately, this courtesy has declined the last few years. CT's and non-reg's are blowing each other off; they're not even speaking to students from the same side of the campus."

"We are becoming like any other campus, a collection of people in such a big hurry to get someplace we never see our fellow students. A&M deserves better than this."

"Howdy" has always been the traditional greeting; even now fish will find it pointed out in the "Standard." The Corps is going to start enforcing its own rules. Hopefully the other students will join in and this practice will continue after the Baylor game is over.

Another project the finance committee has undertaken is to encourage civilians and dates of Corps members to dress appropriately for Aggie football games.

"When Aggies go to support their team they should be dressed neatly because they're representing their school as much as the football team is. It is especially important that they try to wear the school colors to represent pride in A&M and all it stands for."

Wiatrowski closed by noting the particular importance of showing this pride during the Baylor game. "There is a good chance the game will be televised regionally," he explained, "and many people may draw their opinions of A&M from what they can see in the stands."

Batt Film Review

'The Last of Sheila'

Reviews of "The Last Of Sheila" have been noticeably bad. That is a shame because the movie is fairly enjoyable. It is evident that care was taken with the plot and the script, which is more than many films can say.

The plot is intricate. Sheila was the wife of James Coburn, who plays a Hollywood producer. Someone ran her down with a car. A year later Coburn invites the suspects, all friends, for a week of fun and games aboard his yacht. Every night they play games that seem to lead to their own concealed secrets, and Sheila's murderer. Before the murderer can be found, Coburn is killed. The guests then solve Coburn's murder, Sheila's murder and one or two others that happen along.

James Coburn, Richard Benjamin, Dyan Cannon, Rachel Welch, James Mason, Joan Hackett and Ian McShane star. As was mentioned earlier, they are competent. However they seem strangely passionless. While they make us believe in their characters, they do not display enough emotion to make us care about them.

The problems started after the death of Coburn. Even with a small part he brings a great deal of vitality to the film, and a great deal leaves when he dies.

Dealing with shallow Hollywood characters would preclude much emotional depth at any rate. Richard Benjamin plays an unsuccessful screen writer, Dyan Cannon a bitchy agent; both of whom care more for themselves than anyone else. Rachel Welch was supposed to be a starlet, however she does more posing than acting.

The end had good intentions, but basically pointed out the apathy of the characters. It is hard to care about people who do not care about each other.

This started out as a favorable review. It still is. Sheila is an interesting who-done-it. The location on the coast of France is colorful. Even with its problems it is a better flick than most. At the very least we have been given an original plot, and that in itself is satisfying.

"I can't with any confidence tell you that we're in a position where we see the outcome at this time," said Robert J. McCloskey, the State Department spokesman in reporting continued discussions Thursday between Secretary Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly E. Dobrynin.

U. S. officials said Washington and Moscow have not narrowed their differences to the point where the two countries were considering a specific proposal to be put before the U. N. Security Council.

These officials said Israel's Arab foes evidently have reached a uniform position regarding a negotiated settlement. But an Arab source at the United Nations in New York said Nixon and Kissinger left the impression with Arab diplomats with whom they talked Wednesday that the United States would delay a Middle East peace move until it built up Israel's military strength. The source said he expected this resupply process to take at least two weeks.

Pentagon analysts who have studied reports from American representatives in Israel and Egypt said the 13-day-old war may be approaching the decisive point in tank battles in the Sinai Desert. Other officials said it is not clear whether Israel or Egypt had gained an advantage.

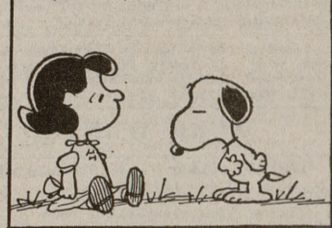

In a possible major diplomatic development, British authorities

The Church.. For a Fuller Life.. For You..

You can't help loving this little pup. Maybe it's because he seems so out of proportion. If he somehow were able to flap those ears he might fly away.

Perhaps there is a little fellow in your home who is "all ears" in another sense... a youngster who takes in everything that's said, including some things he isn't meant to hear.

Most children are eager to listen... hungry to learn. That is why the early years are so important in the molding of a child's character. The things he hears, whether right or wrong, make a deep impression on his mind. They are soon reflected in his actions and words.

Wise parents take advantage of the Church's program of religious education in implanting those early impressions. They know there is no surer builder of character than religious faith.

NOW... while your child is eager to hear and to learn, bring him to church... and support the Church in its great undertaking.
