

Band gets instruments

The Army ROTC program has furnished 43 new musical instruments for the Texas Aggie Band.

The instruments are authorized allowance from Army ROTC supply for the TAMU detachment, noted Col. Thomas R. Parsons, commandant. S. Sgt. Everett J. King, Army detachment supply sergeant, handled requisitions and turn-in of dated equipment.

Almost all the instruments have been delivered and will be in use during the spring semester, announced Maj. Joe Haney.

"Some of the equipment we had couldn't be played," the Aggie Band director added. "It was 20 years old."

Part of the 300-member band volunteered to return early for the spring semester to play at the Tuesday A&M-SMU basketball game.

The instrument issue includes three snare drums, two euphoniums, two piccolos, three French horns, four trombones, eight trumpets, one bell lyre, 11 clarinets, two tenor saxophones, two baritone saxophones, two alto saxophones, two Sousaphones and a flute.

"We are indebted to Sgt. King for his work in helping us get the allotted instruments from the Army for the ROTC band," Haney said.

"As many of our instruments are in need of repair and many are at the stage of needing to be replaced, the Army horns will go a long way toward improving the proficiency, intonation and sound of the band," he added.

JETS adds new test

Pocket calculator computation is a new addition to the competitive tests section of this year's annual Junior Engineering Technical Society (JETS) conference at TAMU.

Scheduled March 1, the annual state conference will attract more than 1500 Texas high school students, teachers and advisors to the field day of technical sessions and competitions.

The conference is sponsored by the Texas Advisory Committee for JETS in cooperation with TAMU's College of Engineering.

Engineering Assistant Dean John G. McGuire has charge of local arrangements for the event.

The JETS program serves to inform high school student, his teachers, and his parents about the engineering profession. The annual conferences provide students with an opportunity to hear qualified speakers on the engineering profession and engineering education.

Students are also given the opportunity to compete against one another in technical areas of study through the competitive tests program. Subjects for the competition include slide rule, chemistry, engineering graphics, biology, mathematics and physics.

This year's conference is aimed at providing high school teachers and students with an insight to the engineering profession, the future of engineering, and other aspects of the engineering profession.

A distinguished group of speakers from industry and engineering education will inform students about the engineering profession today.

Highlighting activities of the conference will be an address by J. Kelly Elliott, member of the JETS Advisory Committee and president of the Macco Oil Tool Co., Houston.

Engineering exhibits by more than 40 Texas industrial and professional sponsors of JETS go on display for participating students in the Commons areas of the Zachry Engineering Center throughout the day, Dean McGuire said.

Conference registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. in Lecture Room 1 of the Zachry Center. "Student-Teacher Interaction" is the conference theme.

LITTLE BOY

Somehow men never quite seem able to get over being little boys. They can handle responsibility, but sometimes their spirits sink.

Cares can overtake a man. That's when he reverts into an unhappy, discouraged little boy. At times like these, his wife must strive to help, to understand.

A wise wife knows that the Church offers an answer to their problems. At church hope and faith are common, and friends abound.

There is something in regularly going to church that gives a person perspective, strength and faith.
