State

EL PASO — An El Paso television newsman, who challenged the city's mayor and mayor pro tem on alleged violations of the state open meeting laws, has lost his job.

Richard Wheatley filed complaints against Mayor Fred Hervey and Mayor Pro Tem Ruben

Schaeffer after newsmen were barred from a meeting the pair had with federal officials.

Later, station management relieved Wheatley of on-the-air duties at both KTSM-AM and KTSM-TV.

ODESSA — Jim Granberry, a candidate for governor in the Republican primary, says the state's labor forces are afraid to debate right-to-work and agency shop issues.

At a Lincoln Day dinner sponsored by the Ector County Republican Party, the former Lubbock mayor said the time has come "to tell labor forces they don't have a franchise or the constitution of Texas."

SHERMAN — A convicted robber-murderer filed a $10,000 damage suit Tuesday against Sheriff Woody Blanton of Grayson County and a retired Blanton county, James Lambert.

Walter Lee Morris said in his petition he was beaten by the two officers in 1970 until he confessed two murders and a robbery.

National

WASHINGTON — The subpoena commanding President Nixon's appearance in a Los Angeles court finally reached the clerk of the District of Columbia Superior Court, eight days after it was mailed from Los Angeles. The Postal Service is trying to find out why it took so long. The subpoena asks Nixon to testify at a hearing Feb. 25 and at the trial of three former White House aides on April 15. The three men are charged with burglary and conspiracy in the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

WASHINGTON — The 13-nation Washington energy conference searched Tuesday for a compromise common energy policy for the major consuming countries. A deepening split within the nine-nation European Economic Community cast a cloud over the meeting, which began Monday and was to end late Tuesday. The key question of a continuing group to prepare for further meetings on energy plagued the final hours. France opposed the preparatory group.

International

TOKYO — The red star of China's young revolutionaries may be rising once again. But it apparently isn't shooting to the heights of the 1966-1969 cultural revolution when youthful Red Guards smashed deviations from Mao Tse-tung's thinking. The indication that there may be an effort to restore young Chinese to an important role in the political plans of Peking's leaders came in the official newspaper People's Daily. The paper warned against repressing the "revolutionary ardor" of young people who criticize the late Lin Biao and the ancient philosopher Confucius.

Student organized workshop hosts professional architects

Invitations have been sent to landscape architecture students for a student-organized workshop this week with professionals in the field.

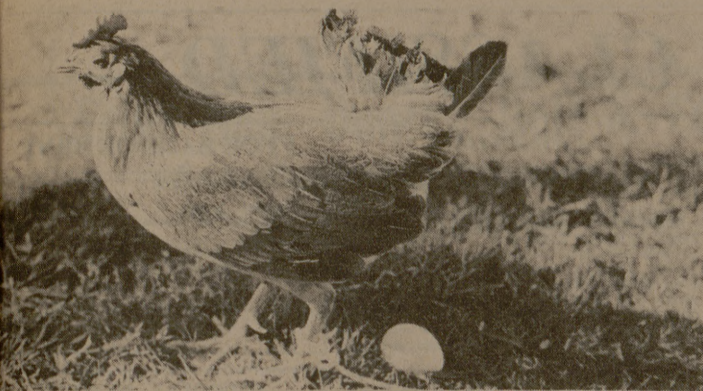

"Workshop '74 Southwest," which is open to the public, will host 15 practicing landscape architects from throughout the Southwest. Registration will be held on Thursday from 3-6 p. m. Friday and Saturday, during

Design and Construction Sessions professionals will study with the students and present problems for them to work out.

Visiting students from Louisiana State, Oklahoma State, Oklahoma, Texas Tech and Mississippi State Universities will hear Dr. Fred Smeins, Associate Professor of Range Science, at 6:30, Thursday night. Speaking on Saturday morning at 9:30 will be Dr. Virgil Stover, Professor of Civil Engineering, Texas Transportation Institute and Dr. Clarissa Kimber, Associate Professor of Geography.

Buddy Harding, co-chairman of the program along with Ron Sassin, noted that he hopes the idea, which was a graduate student's inspiration, will catch on and that other schools will decide to host the workshop in succeeding years.
