

Panel says coal energy next

Coal will be the immediate solution to the energy crisis as oil and natural gas supplies dwindle, according to the consensus of opinion of a Student Council on National Affairs panel on "Emerging Energy Priorities" Friday.

Substitute energy sources such as solar and geothermal energy were not found to be practical solutions in the short range, causing us to rely on a 20 year supply of coal when other fossil fuels run out, despite environmental pollution problems.

Cong. Mike McCormack (D-Wash.), Atomic Energy Commission member William Anders and American Petroleum Institute marketing director Raymond Wright composed the panel which presented short speeches and then answered questions.

Cong. Olin E. Teague, chairman of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, and Apollo 13 astronaut John L. Swigert introduced the group of experts.

"The U.S. has no energy policy today," said McCormack. "We must develop our own energy sources and never again be dependent upon other nations or subject to blackmail from any other country," he added.

Wright said the U. S. is not the primary market for goods and services in the world. The Europeans use more oil than the U. S. and Japan is second.

Nuclear power offers the most efficient, environmentally feasible and safest solution to the energy problem," said Anders. He added, however, that the problems of the development of fuel resources, power production and nuclear waste management must be solved first.

Nuclear plants are now supplying five per cent of our energy production using 38 plants. Each plant costs $1 billion and takes eight to ten years to build, according to Anders. Two hundred new plants are now on order.

Total nuclear power seems a long way away and, according to McCormack, solar and geothermal sources can be expected at best to supply only two per cent of the energy to heat and cool homes by 1985.

Dorm improvements begin, to continue through summer

Phase III of dorm improvements began recently with the painting of dorm eight.

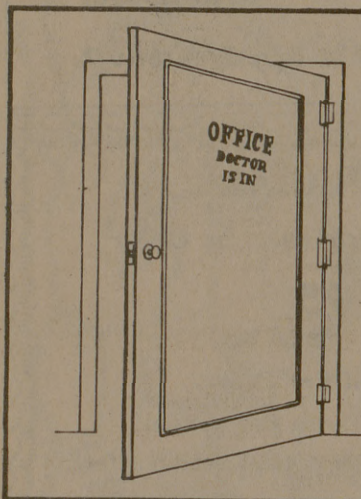

Other dorms will be repaired during the summer months. Improvements will include painting the rooms and closets in Dorms 2, 3, 10, 12 and Hart Hall; and painting the bath and shower areas in Moses, Davis-Gary, Crocker, Moore, Hart and Legett. Changing overhead incandescent light fixtures for fluorescent fixtures in rooms in Moses, Davis-Gary, Crocker, Moore and Legett will also be included.

Aluminum and wire glass ramp doors will be installed in Hart, Law, Puryear and Walton, and mixing faucets on lavatories in the rooms in Law, Puryear, Walton and Moses Halls are proposed.

The renovation will cost the University $200,000. The items were decided upon by a group of students and administration representatives. Students were Randy Ross, Body President; T. Getterman, President of RHA; Scott Eberhardt, Corps Commander; Steve Wakefield, Chairperson of Student Services. Administrators were T. D. Cherry, President for Business Affairs, and his associates.

"We asked people we knew in the dorms walked around looking at the condition of dorms," said Ross.

Wakefield explained that many of the given priority were things that had been a year due to lack of funds.

Doctor's Door

DR. CLAUDE GOSWICK, M.D., University Health Center, answers student questions

Q: How does constantly changing weather or getting wet have an effect on health?

A: Neither has a direct effect on health. "Colds" and "flu" are caused by numerous airborne viruses. Being overexposed and then getting wet can lower resistance to these viruses, as does constantly changing weather. Also, ultraviolet rays in the intense summer sunshine "sterilizes" the air and reduces its amount of bacteria and viruses.

Q: When will the university possibly have a gynecologist?

A: The Student Health Center has three physicians—all general practitioners. There are plans to get a fourth, possibly a general practitioner with interest in gynecology. If this fails there are other alternatives; but, rest assured, the Health Center will try to provide the best possible care for A&M students.

Q: Is there a cure for idiopathic polynneuritis?

A: Idiopathic polynneuritis (Landry-Guillain-Barre Syndrome) is a severe, rapidly advancing ascending motor paralysis. The cause is completely unknown. Muscle weakness and paralysis starts in the feet and legs and quickly ascends to involve the trunk, arms, and cranial muscles. Treatment with high doses of adrenal corticoids (cortisone, etc.) helps to reduce the mortality from about 20% to less than 5%. More than 90% of patients who survive are restored to normal function within a few weeks to many months.

Giving Better Service For 28 Years In Bryan

How To Earn $545 Per Month All During Your Senior Year

The Army wants you to finish your education, and they'll pay you $545 a month to do it. Then after graduation, you would spend two years as an officer on active duty. Interested? . . . Spend the month of July at Ft. McClellan, Alabama, just to see if you like the idea. And get $400 while you're there. Obligation: none if you don't like it.

Want to know more? Lt. Marilyn Britten will be in the Memorial Student Center today, February 19, from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. She will be available to answer any questions you may have about this program or other opportunities for women in Today's Army. If you can't make it, call her collee at (713) 688-1328
