

A&M fourth in Rice tourney

Hoover-Courson runners-up in doubles competition

A&M returned from the Rice Intercollegiate Tournament with fourth place overall, doubles runner-up and a shutout over Texas Tech.

The Aggies won five of their six first round matches on the road to the team trophy.

Junior Bill Hoover was the lone Aggie to succumb in the first round, losing to Michael Collins of Oklahoma State, 6-7, 6-1, 6-2.

Freshman Charles Emley had no trouble eliminating Central Texas' Sam Nunez, 6-2, 6-2. Dan Courson defeated Tom Dughi of Columbia, 6-2, 6-3 and Bill Wright beat Van Ceron, Central Texas, 7-6, 7-5.

All three first round winners, though, were eliminated in the second round.

In doubles competition eventual finalists Courson and Hoover advanced as did the second team of Emley and Mark Silberman.

Emley and Silberman succumbed to Rice's Emilio Montana and Alan Boss, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2 in the second round while Hoover and Courson downed Burrman and Timmons of Trinity, 6-1, 7-5 to advance.

In the third round of play Hoover and Courson defeated Van Min and Van Malder of Tennessee, 6-3, 3-6 and 6-2.

The Ags then disposed of the highly touted Houston doubles team of Ross Walker and Dale Ogden in the semifinals match, 6-3, 6-1.

Because of inclement weather, the final match between Hoover and Courson and SMU's George Hardie and Tim Vann was moved indoors.

SMU proved just too powerful for the Ags though and took the title in winning 7-5, 6-4.

Although the Aggies failed to repeat as doubles champions, coach Omar Smith was pleased.

"We played real well as a whole. Losing to SMU in the final doubles match was a bitter pill. Both teams played the percentage shots and came to the net real well, but our inability to return service when we needed the break hurt us."

SMU and co-fourth-ranked Houston tied early for the lead, but SMU leaped forward to take the team title after taking both the singles and doubles crown. Northeast Louisiana was third and A&M was in fourth just a point short of a third place tie.

The Aggies finished higher than six nationally ranked teams and National Junior College Champion Central Texas.

Also, over the weekend the Ags finished a rain-postponed match with Texas Tech. Emley and John Kirwan had their match cut short with Tech's No. 2 doubles team after splitting sets here last week. Emley and Kirwan took the third set in Houston, 6-1, to win the match. The win completed a shutout over Tech in the Ags only Southwest Conference outing this year.

U.S. spikes world team

The United States volleyball team kept the ball alive under a barrage of spikes to break out of a tie and win the final set over the Internationals in taking a 15-6, 1-15, 15-12 decision here Tuesday night.

U.S. captain Dan Bibeau's forces took advantage of an early break in the first set and forged ahead to outscore the Internationals 7-1 in the second half of the set.

The players of captain Jan Szalowski's foreign squad came back strong in the second set allowing only a single early point by the American players in romping to a 15-1 score.

The two teams traded sparse points in the third set and had trouble breaking out of a 5-5 tie. Points were traded until the game was tied 11-11. The U.S. then got things together and forged ahead.

Karl Kuchnow finished the game with an irremovable spike after the Internationals broke serve three times facing game point.

A trophy, supplied by the Foreign Students Office, will be displayed in the Intramural Office.
