

RHA's ideas valued

Development of the Resident Hall Association as a forum for problems and ideas is on the top of Tim Jordan's platform. The senior electrical engineering major is a candidate for RHA president. Qualifications include being the president of Law Hall and being on the committee which rewrote the RHA constitution. Jordan said the RHA should continue to help organize and coordinate residence hall activities. He said coed dorms would probably be an issue next year. "If sufficient number of persons voice a desire for it, then the RHA would pass a resolution advocating it," said Jordan.

The establishment of a dorm improvement committee is another part of Jordan's platform. He said that he hoped such a committee could serve the administration for on-campus housing improvements. "I would like to see an enlarging sphere of influence in the RHA on the administration," said Jordan. "I'd also like to try to prevent a duplication of efforts between the RHA and the Student Government."

Jordan said programmed residence halls should be up to the resident of each dorm, even though the RHA did encourage participation as a programmed hall. "I don't know if I would come out for the sale of liquor on-campus, but I do favor the consumption," said Jordan.

Rules are clarified

(Continued from page 3) she did not see payment of student leaders as an answer to participation. Brewer did suggest that credit hours might be investigated as a possibility. PUNISHMENT. The punishment system should be revamped in the same way it is being now, said Brewer. She pointed out that the administration is studying the system and that the students have shown they are concerned by the legislation brought up in the Senate so far. COED DORMS. Since the coed dorm on campus worked well last year, Brewer said that she could see no reason not to support

'Campus students deserve best lots'

Priority parking for on-campus students is one of the goals of Resident Hall Association presidential candidate Greg Magruder. The freshman bio-medical science major said day students parking should be farther out from the campus with dorm students closer. "I have a real desire to run for RHA president," said Magruder. "I've seen the living and social conditions of the dorms and I can see a lot that can be done." Magruder said the students should decide on if they want to live in all-male, all-female or coed housing. Keeping low prices for the dorms, was also on Magruder's platform. "I'm trying to stop the rising costs for room and board," said Magruder.

Improving intramural facilities and working for optional laundry fees are two other items Magruder is going to work for. "There should be non-program dorms and program dorms," said Magruder. "It should be divided whichever way suits the students the best." Magruder said that liquor on-campus should be tried at least on a trial basis and that TAMU shouldn't be behind other schools on issues like this.
