

Koldus 'made right decision' on movie

"That issue was not mine; that was brought to me," said Koldus. He explained that a memo came from J. W. Stark, director of the MSC, asking that programming of all events be approved by the MSC.

"Control should be a matter of centralization and organization," Koldus said. "Anything within the confines of the university cannot operate all alone. That is idealistic and impractical; it has to be tied down. All of the administration is constrained."

"Anything can be educational," said Koldus, and then asked if "anything" should be allowed on campus.

"I think that anything the students want to find out about, they should be allowed to study," said Manning. "No constraints."

Koldus asked if Manning thought he would always feel that way 20 years from now.

"I hope so," said Manning. The audience applauded.

"You're all idealistic," said Koldus.

The discussion moved to the question of prior restraint on the newspaper, and Speer described efforts to censor portions of photographs of strikers in the paper. This led to his search of who has final authority of the content of The Battalion.

"I received vague answers on who has this authority from everyone except President Williams, who assumed that final responsibility," said Speer.

"In my memory, it was Rod Speer who made the decision to put the stars on the pictures," said Stephenson. "It was under pressure, I agree, but it was pressure to make Rod use his judgment."

Stephenson said he hasn't faced the problem of censorship in the seven and a half years that he has been associated with "The Battalion."

Webb suggested that editing was a form of censorship and that The Battalion was often filled with "misleading and false statements."

Speer was asked by a member of the audience what he would do to test Stephenson's position. Speer replied that he had exhausted all avenues in the university, but was not ready to take the matter of the First Amendment to court. He said that he would assume that the clause in the university rules and regulations handbook that states only the editor has authority on the content of the paper is reality until that clause was again challenged by the administration.

Stephenson concluded, in agreement with several earlier statements by other members of the panel, that if the paper wants to be completely independent, "then I think the answer is to go off-campus."

Manuel Davenport, faculty sponsor of the SCLU, wrapped up the discussion. "I think I know what would happen if the SCLU or the Batt went to court, but I hope that doesn't happen because of the harm that would be done along the way. I hope this panel has served the purpose for providing other channels of communication."

Texas A&M University, February 13, 1974
Office of the Dean of Admissions and Records
To be eligible to purchase the Texas A&M University ring, an undergraduate student must have at least one academic year in residence and credit for ninety-two (92) semester hours. The hours passed at the preliminary grade report period on March 4, 1974 may be used in satisfying this ninety-two hour requirement. Students qualifying under this regulation may now leave their names with the Ring Clerk, Room Seven, Richard Coke Building. She, in turn, will check all records to determine ring eligibility. Orders for these rings will be taken by the Ring Clerk starting March 15, 1974, and continuing through May 8, 1974. The rings will be returned to the Registrar's Office for delivery on or before June 14, 1974. The Ring Clerk is on duty from 8:00 a. m. to 12:00 noon and 1:00 p. m. to 4:00 p. m., Monday through Friday of each week.
