'76 presidential election may include Ted Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Monday he would like to be president and is giving some consideration to running in 1976.

He said that by late next year, and possibly earlier, "I'll make a definitive kind of a decision about my plans."

Kennedy, one of whose brothers was assassinated while president and another while running for president, said members of his family will not have a veto over his decision.

"No, they won't," he said in response to a question. "And they've indicated were I to make a judgment to run that they would support me."

Kennedy was interviewed on "Washington Straight Talk," a national public affairs broadcasting program, by Paul Duke.

"Which way are you leaning at this moment?" Kennedy was asked.

"If I was asked today, I'd just run for re-election to the Senate," he replied.

"Would you, deep down, like to be President?"

"Yes."

Kennedy said the presidency provides the opportunity most effectively "to bring about the kind of changes that I think are important for the country."

Duke mentioned the Chappaquiddick incident in which Mary Jo Kopechne drowned, and also told Kennedy that the polls show "a substantial number of Americans do not really trust you, or they don't have a very high regard for your character or your integrity."

"Do you feel that you could provide the country with moral leadership in the wake of Watergate?" Kennedy was asked.

"Well, I wouldn't run if I didn't," he replied. "But I'm completely satisfied that if I decided to run, I think I could—I could, yes."

In talking about why he'd like to be President and what he sees as the principal need of the country today, Kennedy said there has to be "a restoration in the American people of a feeling that they can deal with the problems we're facing here at home."

"I think, generally, there's a feeling of frustration, that government is not responsive, and this sense of restoration has to be re-established," he said.

You'll never know how much good you can do until you do it.

Felipe Maghirang knows how much good he can do. He does it every week as a volunteer at a home for mentally retarded children.

Lawyer Barry Klickstein knows how much good he can do. He does it by volunteering to help poor people win their rights in court.

Volunteer Candy Richards knows how much good she can do. She's doing it for the children at a neighborhood day care center.

You can help people.

In fact, there's a crying need for you. Your talents. Your training. Your concerns. They can make you priceless as a volunteer in your community.

Take a moment to think of all that can be done. For children. The environment. Sick people. Old people. People who just need someone behind them.

Then take another moment to think of what you can do. Perhaps by applying your job skills or personal interests to voluntary action.

There are probably several organizations hard at work in your town doing things you'd be proud to be part of. We'll put you in touch with them. Join one. Or, if you see the need, start a new one.

If you can spare even a few hours a week, call your local Voluntary Action Center. Or write:

"Volunteer," Washington, D.C. 20013. It'll do you good to see how much good you can do.

There's no easy way for Charlie Nelson to become Dr. Nelson.

But there is a way to make it somewhat easier. Our way. The Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program. It won't soften the demands of your professors, or those you make upon yourself—but it may free you from those financial problems which, understandably, can put a crimp in your concentration.

If you qualify, our scholarship program will cover the costs of your medical education. More, you'll receive a good monthly allowance all through your schooling.

But what happens after you graduate? Then, as a health care officer in the military branch of your choice you enter a professional environment that is challenging, stimulating and satisfying.

An environment which keeps you in contact with practically all medical specialties. Which gives you the time to observe and learn before you decide on your specialty. Which may present the opportunity to train in that specialty. And to practice it.

You may also find some of the most advanced medical achievements happening right where you work. Like at the Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas, long noted for its Burn Treatment Center. Or the home of Flight Medicine, the famed Aerospace Medical Division, also in San Antonio, Or the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Maryland, recognized worldwide for its work in Medical Research.

And if you've read this far, you may be interested in the details. Just send in the coupon and we'll supply them.
