

Tornadoes twist through Texas in destruction dance

(AP) — Tornadoes swirled through north and central portions of Texas Wednesday in a dance of destruction that left heavy material damage and at least one person injured.

At Georgetown in South Central Texas, a tornado touched down about 7 p.m. two miles south of the Georgetown Airport. Authorities said there was minor damage to Georgetown residences but damage was estimated at several hundred thousand dollars at the airport. There were no injuries.

At Lindfay, four miles west of Gainesville in North Texas, the Gainesville Fire Department evacuated about ten homes as Elm Creek overflowed during the evening.

The flooding followed in the wake of two tornadoes which swept into the Gainesville area in Cooke County Wednesday afternoon causing damage estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000 and injuring one person.

Authorities said the injured person was an elderly woman from the Valley View suburb where one of the twisters hit. She was buried under the debris of her home. Rescuers took her to a hospital.

The second twister hit about 30 minutes later, around 5 p.m., hitting homes in the southern section of town. The Red Cross said that five homes suffered major damage and twelve sustained minor damage.

Most of the damaged homes were on Lindsay St. where the second tornado hit.

Officials said a roof from a house was blown into the high school, but students were in another part of the building and no injuries were reported.

The turbulent weather was sparked by a cold front rolling eastward across the state. The National Weather Service said thunderstorms and other violent weather would prevail over portions of North Central Texas.

Early in the evening the Weather Service issued a tornado watch for portions of North Central and Northeast Texas. The tornado watch included the following counties:

Thunderstorms developed before the front, which stretched from the Panhandle to the Big Bend area, as warm, moist air billowed in from the south.

The Department of Public Safety said a severe thunderstorm with winds up to 80 miles an hour and heavy rain hit an area south of Waxahachie Wednesday morning.

Temperatures Wednesday ranged from the mid 40's in Far West Texas to the low 80's along the Coastal Plain.

Forecasters said showers and thunderstorms will develop over all of the state as the cold front rolls east. Skies are expected to be cloudy while cool temperatures will spread throughout the western half of the state behind the front.

Wind warnings were issued for many lakes in east Texas.
