The funds will come from the mmunity Development Act, oehler said. The program is demed to replace present programs

ities he said. Cities presently under the reced programs will not receive a tion. in funds for the first three years behler said. After this time all es will be awarded funds on the is of a Department of Housing d Urban Development (HUD) mula to determine need.

The funds will come directly to e city, once the proposed acvities are approved by HUD, oehler said. This will result in a ss of the federal identity of the oney and possible conflicts with tate law, he said.

State law prohibits cities from givrehabilitation loans to individus (a program currently funded by the federal government) and the s of federal identity of these funds ould result in the death of this ogram, Koehler said.

Commissioner Tom Chaney said small size of the funding will ult in only roads and drainage blems being approached by the y under the program.

All funds spent under the act st be used in accordance with eral regulations, such as the pual employment act, Koehler

One of the implications of the act that the city, not HUD as it presly stands, is the body responsible the courts for making sure the regulations are complied with.

Friends of Library give contest awards

led the air at the annual Friends of the Library student collectors contest award presentation.

The presentation, held Friday afternoon, featured speaker, Lon Tinkle of the Dallas News talking on the faults and fancies of the book critic. Some of the faults he spotted were critics drawing attention to themselves and not their subject, serving as their publisher's propagandists and allowing snobbery in the book world.

The book should be reviewed while still on bookstore shelves, Tinkle said. They should be held as records for achievement and contain the purity of language.

Books, Tinkel said, are personal because they can be approached at one's own tempo, with one's own W. Guy Shown.

Mexican-American group hosts speaker

The Committee for Awareness of Mexican-American Culture will present Dr. Rolando R. Hinojosa-Smith speaking on Mexican-American literature at 8 p.m. Wednesday in room 225 of the MSC. Entitled "Mexican-American Literature: Towards an Identification and its Current Movements," the presentation will be free to students and the public.

Dr. Hinojosa-Smith, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Texas A&I University, has been involved with Mexican-American literature for 21 years. During this period, the CAMAC speaker has written a novel, four monographs and a short story.

The speaker has received the 1972 Quinto Sol Literary Award for his book, "Estampes del Valle y

Students offered counseling clinic

By BARBARA WEST Staff Writer

Married students with problems

now have a place to go for help. Dr. Patricia Self conducts a counseling service for married students in Apartment B-7-B of the old College View Apartments. She is available from 8:30 a.m. till noon Tuesdays and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Thursday's for consultation with married students with or without their spouses

Some of the areas of major concern in which counseling will be offered are family life education, marital growth problems, family planning and negotiation skills for marriage. Self also plans workshops for spouses of students in areas of major importance such as budgeting and sharing of resources as in bulk purchasing of food.

Dr. Self and Robert M. Rutledge III, student legal adviser, will hold an open house Wednesday at 7 p.m. to acquaint the married students with the facilities now available to them and to give them an opportunity to meet in an informal setting.

Officially, she was disenrolled from the college she was elected to represent. She stayed in the College of Liberal Arts for the two and a half months. Martin has registered again with the College of Education thus keeping her double major. The issue at hand was whether or not to allow Martin to remain as senator of the College of Education.

The SG constitution states that a senator must be "representing his constituency at all times." Debate was hot and sharp over whether Martin had violated this regulation by being registered in a college other than the one she was elected to represent.

Martin said that the Constitution was not set down clearly enough as what "representing his constituency times" meant. Steve Eberhard, SG president, agreed, saying that the big question was what constituted membership.

Several officers disagreed on the underlying issue. John Nash, vicepresident of external affairs, locked

Judicial Board to review election

The SG Judicial Board will discuss the possible voiding of the constitutional amendments included in the Nov. 14 student elections.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in room 504 of the Rudder

The six amendment corrections, on the ballot, are being contested by senior Douglas Winship.

SG President Steve Eberhard said the reason for the amendment changes was "parallelism between parts of some of the amendments.' Winship stated in his brief that a

Nash said since Martin had registered back into the college she was elected to represent, there was no need to remove her from office, except as a form of retroactive punishment.

Curt Marsh, vice-president of finance, said that any action taken against Martin could not be called retroactive, since Martin registered back into the College of Education after the matter was brought up before the Executive Board.

Discussion ended with a vote of 4 to 3 allowing Martin to remain as senator of the College of Education.
