20th Century claims 70 mpg with car slated for August

DALLAS (AP) — A young company led by a woman engineer announced Wednesday it is moving to Texas to start production of a car it claims will revolutionize the automobile industry.

The car is the Revette, a two-passenger, three-wheel, 1,000-pound, two-cylinder vehicle made mostly of a new plastic material that the company, Twentieth Century Motor Corp., says will give up to 70 miles per gallon and sell for less than $2,000.

Mrs. Elizabeth Carmichael, president of the company, said Twentieth Century Corp. plans to begin full scale production of the Revette and two additional models at its installations in Texas by next August. The company's headquarters have been moved from Encino, Calif., to Dallas and the prototype of the Revette, which already has been seen at automobile shows, was expected to arrive in Dallas Thursday.

The company expects to employ 9,000 Texas workers and to produce 88,000 units in its first year of operation.

The Revette will be followed at the assembly line by the Revella, a five-passenger model, and the Vanagen, a station wagon. All are three-wheel vehicles.

Carmichael, 37, a widow and mother of five with a mechanical engineering degree from Ohio State University and a Masters Degree in business administration from the University of Miami was the designer of the company's car.

Carmichael says the Revette body will be "injection molded using a new polycarbonate plastic. The instruments panel will have printed circuits and accessories plugged directly. It uses a revamped BMW two-cylinder motor cycle engine which turns out 40 horsepower. It will go up to 85 miles per hour and its designers say the tests have shown it can turn sharp corners at 35 miles per hour without losing any of its stability.

HEW funded study may produce anti-cancer drug

A possible anticancer drug is under study by a TAMU team.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has added $26,176 to the fund of Dr. Kenneth Harding to aid production of the anti-tumor agent "Vernolepin."

The material was isolated in leaves found in Ethiopia in 1965 by a group taking random extracts from plants and checking them for cancer inhibitory qualities.

"We will try to develop a procedure for preparation of the agent in the lab from readily available organic chemicals," Harding said. "My basic idea for the synthesis was developed in about two hours. Then it took about three months to document the idea and prepare specific proposals. But this is the year we expect to see some significant results."

The project will develop simple methods for the laboratory preparation of the complex Vernolepin molecule. These methods will also allow preparation of structural variants for testing.

Mud wrecks oil platforms

The problems that man has overcome increase in the intensification search for energy!

A TAMU research team headed by Dr. Richard Schapery of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station (TEES) and director of the Mechanics and Materials Research Center, is developing a system to lessen the danger to oil platforms from underwater mud slides.

"The continental shelf off Louisiana is a prolific oil and gas producing area," Schapery explained. "However, the Mississippi River dumps a million tons of sediment daily in this area where the mud sets like a layer of jello.

Bryant named film consultant

Dr. Vaughn Bryant Jr., Texas A&M biologist and anthropologist, has been named a special consultant to a six-part film series called "The Peopling of the New World."

The series would be shown on public television in the fall of 1977 and early 1978.

Educational Expeditions International of Belmont, Mass. is producing the project under National Science Foundation support that could go over $2 million.

Bryant will serve as a consultant due to his past research in prehistoric environments, diets and vegetation.

TEC to accept benefits claims

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Employment Commission said today it will begin taking claims for extended unemployment benefits Feb. 3 at all TEC offices over the state.

Under the new provisions unemployed persons who filed initial claims for jobless benefits within one year prior to Jan. 26 and who have exhausted those benefits are eligible to file a claim.

Persons claiming unemployment insurance benefits as exservicemen or ex-federal employees are also eligible for the extended benefits.

The TEC said the extended benefits will be available only as long as the rate of unemployment remains at levels specified by the emergency federal legislation.

immediately replaced so it never has time to settle by the weight of overlying materials," he noted. "That great layer of jello, in places more than 100 feet deep, only washes for a hurricane, earthquake or unusual currents to set it quivering with enough force to wreck an oil platform."

Hurricane Camille struck the area with winds of over 200 miles per hour and toppled one platform and damaged two more so badly they had to be abandoned.

"Subsequent investigations showed that the damage was due not to wind and wave action alone, but to significant sediment movements along the bottom," Schapery pointed out.
