

Sex number 1 vice

By T.C. GALLUCCI
Ah! It is Joey's 16th birthday today. Coincidentally it is also the night of the Sophomore Sock Hop at All-America High School. Joey figures he is a man now. Besides, Suzy promised.

Although many would like to deny it, sex rates as the all-time high on the list of favorite vices. Joey is about to have his first taste of what is America's most practiced sport; even though mom and dad won't talk about it.

Widely practiced, written about, talked and joked about, sex is probably the least understood vice. Folks smoke, drink and cuss usually because of insecurity. But the one who is a master of sex is so because of confidence.

Society does not consider sex a vice unless the circumstances conflict with existing morality legislation. Society says (enforced by the law) Joe can go to bed with his wife, but that must be the end of the sexual frolics, for Joe cannot have sex with Rover, his cocker spaniel; Julie, his mother; Jim, his army buddy; or Mrs. Doe, the minister's wife. But since Joe loves his wife, he has no desire to get emotionally involved with Rover. Even then, however, he is restricted. Joe must pay a fine if he decides to frolic in Central Park, but he could receive a small fortune from MGM if he wanted to frolic on a movie screen.

Despite his restrictions, Joe managed well enough for he proudly looks at his maturing son blow out his birthday candles. (Remember 16-year-old Joey?) Joey may become a man tonight, doubtless he has been trying for months, but Joe will experience only the act itself (remember Suzy promised). In Joey's situation, the act is only incidental. He is experiencing the kill without the hunt.

Sadly enough, the hunt varies little. The line that brought Napoleon his conquests was probably the same one that brought Joe his. Throughout history, the male has been the hunter and the female the huntress. Although males rarely admit it, the female has also become an active huntress. When the male "scores" easily, he figures it was because of his irresistible charms. If he only realized that he had been taken advantage of.

Although it isn't saying much for female creativity, the woman uses the same approach — only more subtly.

The time is 3 p.m. Saturday afternoon. Ring! Ring!
"Hello, May I speak to Suzy?"
"This is Suzy."
"Oh, Uh, Uh."
"Is this Joey?"
"Yeah, Listen, I was wondering what you were, uh, doing tonight."
"Not much, why?"
"Oh well, I thought maybe you'd want to go to a party over at Tom's."
"Well, I don't know. I suppose I could manage."
"Great, I'll pick you up around 9. Bye."
"Bye."

Since Suzy didn't develop a severe "headache" (at least, not yet) the happy couple are off to the party and parts unknown by 9:30. After a few drinks, three albums and two hours:

"Suzy, don't you think this party is getting awful old? Why don't we go for a drive?"

"Well, okay, but I don't want to stay out late." (Suzy is catching on)

After five miles, two stop signs and one emergency, (car stalled on Backwoods Street), Joey casually mentions that he needs to stop by his apartment for a minute and he hopes she doesn't mind.

The next setting is in the apartment, where Joey's minute is long enough to listen to an album, drink a beer and just "talk awhile". Suzy finally develops her severe headache and politely, but firmly requests a ride home. Suzy is the emotional type, because twice she threatened to call the police.

Despite the fact that Joey struck out, he was able to enjoy the experience of a hard-fought hunt.

Had Suzy been less emotional about the police and more emotional about Joey, the ending would have been different.

Following a couple more hours of "talking", less commonly known as foreplay, Joey and Suzy too for that matter, would have reached the final stage of sex. The act itself. (It has an almost reverent tone, huh?)

Although there are thousands upon thousands of surveys and experts claiming to show what the "typical sex habits of man" are, none are complete, for man lies too much. Doubtless, Joey's version will differ considerably from Suzy's concerning Saturday night's events.

Sex is respected mainly because it is only a three-letter word. Yet it does classify as an art, the oldest of arts. One is hard put to call it a vice as it populates the earth, provides recreational activity and offers job opportunities to the unemployed.

Bell says earnings low; needs $45 million more

DALLAS (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said Wednesday a steady deterioration of its overall earnings in Texas made a $45 million increase in intrastate toll call rates necessary.

In a statement given to Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill, Bell said the hike in long distance charges, which are not regulated in Texas by state or local governments, "was not motivated by the absence of considerable rate activity involving local exchange rates."

Hill last week questioned the validity or need for the rate increase and warned the state might go to court to block it. Bell then asked for a meeting with Hill to explain its reason for the rate hike. A spokesman for Hill said Wednesday the attorney general had received Bell's statement and would confer with Bell officials Friday.

The company said the rate increases were needed to finance $705 million in new construction and renewal and enlargement of its telephone plant. This program is vital if the company is to fulfill its service commitment to the state, Bell said.

Bell said inflation has increased the cost of providing telephone service on every front, local exchanges, intrastate calls and interstate calls.

"Underlining the need for addressing the earnings problem in every conceivable manner, is a steady erosion of our earnings which has been apparent to us for some time," the statement continued. "Contrary to popular belief, our earnings in Texas are not the highest of any state served by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., nor are they among the highest in the Bell System."

Bell said operating results for 1974 in the system are not complete, but that in 1973 Texas ranked 16th among the states in earnings.

Bell said the company's rate of return on capital in 1974 was 7.88 per cent, compared to 9.06 per cent in 1967.

An intrastate toll increase of $45 million, coupled with the resolution of the $48 million pending in local exchange rate cases and anticipated revenues from an interstate increase would improve earnings to no more than 8.1 per cent, Bell said.

The company concluded that the alternatives to the intrastate rate increase "are to cut back in expenditures and investments, which would not be in the best interest of our customer body as a whole, or to drastically increase local exchange rates throughout Texas. Both alternatives were, and are, unacceptable." The company said it plans to invest $700 million in Texas in 1975.

The statement did not address the attorney general's request for a public hearing on the new rates. However, the company has indicated it will consult with Hill later on that matter.
