Ford's energy proposals 'headed for trouble'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation to block the first part of President Ford's energy program won Senate committee approval Wednesday but it appeared that if the bill passes, the Senate may have trouble overriding Ford's expected veto.

The bill, already passed by the House, would suspend for 90 days Ford's $3-per-barrel special tax on imported oil, giving Congress time to write its own energy program. Ford's plan is intended to discourage energy use by driving up prices.

A White House press spokesman said after the 12-2 Finance Committee vote: "The President just believes Congress is wasting time trying to delay action" and should be working instead on his economic-energy legislation.

Although 54 of the 100 senators are sponsors of the delay bill, up to 67 votes would be required to override the veto. Democrats hold 61 Senate seats and could be expected to pick up eight or 10 Republicans on an override attempt, but there is doubt enough Democrats could stick together to enact the delay over a veto.

At least three of the 12 Finance Committee members who voted to send the bill to the floor will vote against it, including chairman Russell B. Long, D-La.

"The President's program will become less popular as it becomes more clearly understood," Long told reporters after the committee session. "But it has the advantage of moving us towards solutions to a problem that has been plaguing us for over a year."

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., who with Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., opposed the measure in committee, said he favors Ford's energy plan, based on higher fuel costs, because it is better than rationing.

Packwood noted Senate Democrats are working on an alternative that would include a gradually rising gasoline tax, but said for a tax to be effective it would have to increase taxes by 55 or 60 cents a gallon. The tentative Democratic plan would provide a 10-cent hike.

The bill allowing the 90-day delay is expected to reach the Senate floor for debate next Monday, but it is doubtful it can be passed without four or five days of discussion although plans for a filibuster have been dropped.

Such a filibuster would delay a vote on a bill, asked by Ford, raise the ceiling on the national debt from the current $495 billion to $531 billion through June 30.

That House-passed bill requires unanimous approval of the Finance Committee on Wednesday.

FBI asks for stiff handgun law

'Legitimate and proper' use shouldn't be stopped

DALLAS (AP) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley suggested mandatory sentences Wednesday for persons convicted of a crime involving a handgun.

"Handguns were involved in over half the murders committed in 1973," Kelley told the Greater Dallas Crime Commission. "More must be done to keep these lethal weapons out of criminal and irresponsible hands."

He said he was not opposed to the "legitimate and proper use" of guns, but that regulations pertaining to handguns must be "strictly and vigorously" enforced.

Citizen involvement, Kelley said, is essential for crime reduction. He compared citizen action to the "Hue and Cry" concept in early England, where citizens were called to assist police in crime prevention.

In a news conference before his address, Kelley said there is no "secret or undisclosed relationship" between the FBI and the Bell telephone system.

"If we get information from them which is obtained in a legal manner, we can open a case and proceed with it," he said.

But, Kelley later told his audience, a provision in the Omnibus Crime Act of 1968 makes it illegal for the FBI to "proceed with information tainted from its inception."

There have been reports from unidentified police officials that federal agencies still work with telephone companies on unauthorized wiretaps, and that they regularly trade information of mutual interest.

The FBI director denied knowledge of such practices, saying, "I do not condone unauthorized taps or intrusions into telephone conversations."

Although Kelley said he favors "regular" reporting by the FBI to Congress, he said he is opposed to a citizen review board to oversee the bureau.

He said the FBI does not know the whereabouts of fugitive newspaper heiress Patty Hearst, who has been missing for more than a year, but, "We sincerely feel we will find her."

A separate group of agents in San Francisco and Los Angeles is assigned to the case and "leads are given their primary attention," Kelley said.

He had mixed news for the Dallas police department with a report that crime in Dallas during the first months of 1974 increased by 19 percent over the same period in 1973. Violent crime, including aggravated assault, murder and robbery, said, decreased by 14 percent in 1974.

Tear gas guns converted for new criminal activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Wednesday that the small tear gas devices used by women to repulse attackers are also being used to commit crimes and will henceforth be classified as firearms.

The decision subjects the devices, their owners and manufacturers to local, state and federal gun laws effective June 1. It was announced by the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. It becomes effective June 1.

Rex D. Davis, director of the bureau, said many models of the weapons, known as pen guns, are easily converted to firing small bullets, from .22 to .32 caliber, with an effective range of up to 25 feet.

He said police agencies around the country "have reported to us an alarming incidence of the use of converted pen guns . . ."

The Federal Aviation Administration has seized an estimated 3,000 to 5,000 of the weapons from persons boarding aircraft, Davis said. He added that it was his understanding that most of the FAA-seized weapons had been converted to fire bullets.

The pen guns, designed as a personal protective device to fire tear gas, frequently are carried by women in their handbags. Another model fires small signal flares for small boats.

Davis said there were a number of other devices that women could use for protection, including whistles and tear gas devices that cannot be converted into firearms.

Under the new regulations, Davis said manufacturers and dealers of pen guns will have to be licensed by the bureau and that
