

MSC asks control

Foreign students and women yell leaders

By DIANE GREENE
Staff Writer

A proposed regulation requiring all speakers, lecturers and entertainers be approved by the MSC office of student activities met with some controversy at the Rules and Regulations Committee meeting Wednesday.

The proposal came from the office of Dr. John Koldus, vice president for Student Services.

On the positive side, Edwin Cooper, dean of Admissions and Records, said if the MSC were the exclusive programming agency, conflicts in scheduling could be avoided and sponsoring organizations would be protected from making bad contracts.

For example, if the Political Science Club scheduled John Dean on the same night Olivia Newton-John was to perform there would be empty seats somewhere and someone would lose a lot of money.

Another possibility discussed was that making the MSC the only channel for student programs to go through is inviting abuse. How would priorities in scheduling be decided, or what criteria would be used in deciding which programs receive the go-ahead?

Roger Miller, assistant to the President, said if the intent of the new regulation is to give the MSC a censoring device it should not be passed.

The regulation was referred back to Student Services for clarification of intent and more articulate wording. As read, the regulation would apply to programs scheduled for an "all university audience." The difference between a specialized and an all university audience was not considered clear.

The committee also received a letter from Steve Eberhard, president of Student Government, calling for the "waiving, for this term only, the requirement in Section 73.2a.2 of University Rules and Regulations that a candidate for Battalion editor have one year of experience on the staff of a student publication."

Eberhard's argument is that since LaTonya Perrin is presently the only person applying for editor there is not enough competition for the position and therefore restrictions on candidacy should be removed.

Greg Moses, current Battalion editor, said this is not true. There are currently two persons running for next year's editorial position, he said.

The Academic Council will have the final decision. The Rules and Regulations Committee was uncertain of its role in the matter. A motion was passed unanimously to "add to the motion and forward to the Academic Council." The motion was proposed by members of student government.

John Tyler, student government vice president, made several proposals at the meeting. He brought up the issue of giving students the freedom to eat in the dining hall of their choice. The committee decided to consult Vice President of Business Affairs Tom Cherry on the feasibility of such a system.

Because the university dining halls serve 25,000 meals a day and facilities are limited, it would appear to be a physical impossibility without a substantial hike in student fees.

Tyler also proposed the deletion of part of University rule 53.1 which states "Subject to availability of on-campus housing, all unmarried students, except graduate students, must live in university residence halls, unless living with members of their immediate families."

The committee did not pass the motion because of the potential financial trouble it could mean for the university. Also it would discourage the building of new dormitories.

The committee "deferred action pending clarification of amperage restrictions" on student government's proposal to change the refrigerator regulation which limits the size allowed in student's rooms to 3' x 3' and the amperage to 1.5 amps.

The meeting which began at 1 p.m. adjourned at 3 p.m. Next meeting is scheduled for March 12.

Olivia Newton-John

Town Hall is presenting vocalist Olivia Newton-John this Friday night at 7:30 in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

In England in 1971 she recorded her first single "If Not For You", which became an instant hit. From here her career expanded to include both the record and TV industry as she became a regular on the BBC-TV series "It's Cliff Richard."

In 1972 she notched up another successful single "What Is Life?" and was voted Best British Girl Singer by readers of the pop magazine "Record Weekly."

In America Newton-John has earned five gold records and one platinum album in ten months. She also became the first British singer to win the "Grammy" for Best Female Country Vocalist and has since won two other female country vocalist awards.

Albert Hammond who recorded "It Never Rains in Southern California" will appear with Olivia Newton-John.

About seven and a half years ago Hammond teamed up with songwriter Mike Hazelwood. They have been together since.

With the success of "Southern California", Hammond intends to plan his musical endeavors so that they will be successes, not just other experiments.
