

Columnist finds hodgepodge

By CYNTHIA MACIEL
As far as I could tell, there is no special trend in the exchange newspapers I've been reading this week. This week's column will be a sort of hodge-podge from the area.

Also in OKLAHOMA, there is a bill before the House Higher Education Committee that will allow international students to establish residency, reducing their tuition from $1,581 per semester to $282.

At the UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT AUSTIN, a beard-growing contest began Friday as a prelude to the 1975 Round-up festivities. The winner will be the male or female who grows the best beard between now and Round-Up Week in April. For all beer drinkers, a Round-Up beer wagon will be on campus with free beer for two days.

At the UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA, they are adding a "Woman in Literature" course, to be offered next semester in the English department. This was because of the objections to the lack of women's studies courses at OU.

Concerning the disputed election of the Daily Texan editor at the UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT AUSTIN, their present editor, Buck Harvey, had a choice word or two. Choice word: "The violation involved was - gasp - campaigning in

Vet school opens doors to viewers

The TAMU College of Veterinary Medicine is observing the College of Agriculture Career Day Saturday with an open house from 8 a.m. to noon.

Members of the TAMU student chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association will conduct tours of the complex and numerous displays and exhibits will be featured.

Part of the morning activities for the Agricultural College are a practice judging contest and career day exhibits in the animal pavilion and plant sciences buildings. All activities are open to the public.

Student finds friend's body after two days

Denny Clark, a TAMU senior, was found dead in his Bryan apartment Tuesday evening.

A friend of Clark's told police his suspicion was aroused when Clark's car was parked at the apartment for two days but no one would answer the door. He broke a window of the upstairs apartment about 5 p.m. and found the body. He then called the police.

As of 8 p.m. Tuesday Detective John Crenshaw of the Bryan Police Department said the cause of death was unknown. He said the case was still under investigation.

Clark was a chemical engineering major from Houston. He lived alone in the Triangle Terrace Apartments on Old College Road.

Former Aggies give a million

Apparently unaware of any economic crisis in America, the Former Students of A&M contributed $1.2 million to the university in 1974.

Joe H. Moore, president of the Former Students, said in a presentation to President Jack K. Williams that 64 per cent of the fund was unrestricted.

Unrestricted funds consist of gifts not tagged by the donor for specific scholarships and other educational programs.

The Association designated unrestricted funds for such programs as Faculty Distinguished Achievement Awards, President's Scholarships and Opportunity Awards.

Also benefited were the president's and dean's funds, graduate student awards, student activities and faculty and student programs.

More than 19,000 former students and friends contributed to the fund through 23,643 gifts, according to Association Executive Director Richard "Buck" Wierus.

dormitories. The last time I heard, dorms are the best place to find students." Second choice word: "I was told last year to campaign in dormitories by a number of people. Fortunately for the dorm residents and me, I didn't take the advice. Some of us are lazy."

Charges were not filed against the two participants of BRACHMAN-CENTENNIAL COLLEGE who were under investigation by the Humane Society for killing a goat last semester behind the dormitory. The two students, who were put on probation because of the incident, claimed the goat was humanely slaughtered for the annual Brachman off-campus barbeque and beer party. They said since all local slaughterhouses were booked full, the two killed the goat behind Brachman Hall.

The probated two claimed the goat was humanely killed by slitting its throat after it was stunned by a hammer blow.

SAN ANTONIO COLLEGE is facing three discrimination complaints. One was filed through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Two were filed through the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

A group of students from St. Philip's College filed a charge of discrimination in hiring of minority faculty against the San Antonio Union Junior College District. The other two discrimination charges stem from Special Services. There are a lot of disappointed students at NORTH TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY. There will not be a wet-dry election in Denton this spring. A petition backed by Students Active in the Community (SAC) was ruled incomplete because it didn't have the required number of signatures of registered Denton voters. It was 78 names short of the 1,911 required to call for the election.
