

Consol board to meet

Re-hiring the administrative staff of the A&M Consolidated School District will be among items considered by the district's board of trustees Monday at its monthly meeting.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Board Room, Room 7, of the Special Services Building at 1300 Jersey.

School principals are included in the positions up for re-hiring. The district's top administrator, Supt. Fred Hopson, had his contract extended for three years at the board's February meeting.

The board met in closed session three days last week to study evaluations made of the instructors and administrators in the district. The faculty will be up for re-employment at the board's next meeting April 7.

As part of the superintendent's report, the board will evaluate current room space needs. Physical education facilities at the elementary schools and a new structure to house the high school's career training facilities will be among building expansion considered.

Hopson said moving the career training operation outside the main high school building would provide more classroom space.

Approval of textbooks for grades 1 to 12 is also on the board's agenda. The board will have to work within the list of texts approved by the state legislature. Texts under consideration include basic readers, elementary science, mathematics, speech, calculus, introductory algebra, probability and statistics, computer math, Spanish and choral music.

Other agenda items include consideration of an athletic participation policy and examining the proposed calendar for 1975-76.

UT President's office Eight-hour takeover ends

AUSTIN (AP) — Ten University of Texas students walked out of the office of acting UT-Austin President Lorene Rogers Thursday night ending an eight-hour sit-in in protest of alleged racial discrimination at the university.

A spokesperson for the group told a crowd of about 300 people in the plaza outside the administration building that the students had been granted amnesty by university officials.

The students, all members of United Students Against Racism, entered Dr. Rogers' office shortly before noon and locked the door.

A university spokesman said Dr. Rogers was ill and not in her office.

A member of the group, Irma Soto, 26, of San Angelo, said the 10 students will meet with the UT regents Friday to discuss the organization's demands.

"We accomplished our goal of getting the attention of the media and getting amnesty," Miss Soto said.

"We have planned our actions for two weeks for this day," Miss Soto said. "It all centers around the HEW report."

A recently released report by the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare said UT-Austin's general admission policies violated federal civil rights standards.

Late Thursday afternoon Reps. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, and Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, arrived to join university administrators in talking with the group.

Dr. Ronald Brown, university vice president for student affairs, said the discussions "had resulted in clarification of minority students' concerns."

"The university does not condone the group's action as a way to express concern," Brown said.

Brown said UT-Regents Chairman Allen Shivers had agreed for the protesting students to meet with the regents.

The occupiers had earlier said they would not leave the office until demands listed in the student newspaper, the Daily Texan, Thursday had been met.

The demands included more money for black and Mexican-American cultural centers and funds for minority newspapers.

ing the bill.

"We only took the Americans' names because they are the ones that vote," Ben-Ali said. "We don't have the right and they should decide."

The University of Texas submitted 7,000 names along with a study of comparative tuitions in other countries. All the studied countries' universities had lower with the highest being Iran. A student pays $180 a year at the University of Tehran, Ben-Ali said.

The first question raised by the committee was why didn't the foreign student go to school elsewhere if the tuition is so much lower?

Ben-Ali explained it this way.

"The education in this country is much more specialized. If I was to go to the University of Tehran, I would want to major in something basic. They don't have as extensive a program as I can receive in the United States. The reason we came to TAMU was because we can receive a high class education for a lot less than we can in other parts of the country. We came here on the assumption that the tuition would remain at $14. Until recently, we could work. Now, we can't."

The University of Texas also submitted a study which indicates that Texas stands to lose $29 million next year if the tuition increases. Foreign students would stop attending the universities, Ben-Ali said.

Students from several universities are coordinating a lobby and are planning to spend the semester break gathering support to fight the bill.

Uproar in Texas House

Reps call for judges' election

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House got into a genuine, old-fashioned liberal-conservative uproar Thursday before adopting a resolution calling for election of federal district judges.

It took more than 1 1/2 hours of irritable debate, made more so as the lunch hour passed, to reach the 81-32 vote.

Both chambers had busy days, passing armloads of bills.

Sent to Gov. Dolph Briscoe for signature were measures that would:

- Raise from 72,000 to 80,000 pounds the weight limits on trucks traveling on primary Texas highways. It was described as a means of using the vehicles more efficiently and saving fuel.
- Allow cities to sue on their own for delinquent municipal sales taxes. They now must wait until the state sues for its taxes, then join that action.
- Remove a limitation that allowed only big cities — those of 500,000 or more population — to sell revenue bonds to raise money for airport construction.
- Require brewers and beer distributors to make written agreements setting out distribution territories. Where a brand has no distributor, its product could not be sold.

— Allow county governments to design their own seals, instead of being restricted to the traditional five-pointed star motif.

House members passed a string of uncontested bills to the Senate, including measures guaranteeing counsel at commitment hearings for alcoholics who are unable to attend; prohibiting employment of ex-convicts as peace officers; and enabling counties in a 75-mile radius of the McDonald Observatory to regulate outdoor lighting.

Rep. Jim Kaster, D-El Paso, sponsor of the observatory bill, said there was a fear that real estate developments would move in and erect mercury and sodium vapor street lights that would interfere with the spectroscopic analysis of the elements contained by heavenly objects.

Such lights, he said, "just tear 'em up" at the observatory.

Senators passed to the House a major bill, arising from last year's controversy over alleged inadequacies in state regulation of child care homes. State supervision would be extended from institutions caring for children 16 and under to include those caring for 17-year-olds as well.

The House tentatively approved, 112-13, a bill rewriting the law governing courts-martial of Texas National Guardsmen to conform to federal court decisions and a 1968 revision of the U.S. Uniform Code of Military Justice.

A key provision would provide a lawyer, if needed, for a guardsman who accidentally caused damage or injury while in line of duty under lawful orders.

This drew opposition from Rep. Abraham Ribak, D-San Antonio.

"I, for one, lost a good part of my family in Europe during World War II because of people following orders," said Ribak, who is Jewish.

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand

Saline, the sponsor and a colonel in the Air National Guard, replied that he shared Ribak's concern over war crimes, but it was only fair for the state to help a guardsman who is "risking his life in a flood and makes a mistake."

The big flap of the day was over a resolution by Rep. Emmett Whitehead, D-Ruck, asking Congress to initiate a U.S. Constitution change requiring election of federal judges.

Such judges now are appointed by the president and can serve for life. Whitehead has strongly criticized recent decisions by federal judges William Wayne Justice of Tyler and Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas that ordered the state to change its methods of dealing with juvenile delinquents and the criminally insane.

Whitehead said the federal judges "act like little gods and tyrants" and declared, "The time has come for Texas to be the first state in the nation to let these federal judges know we don't like what is going on."

His resolution will go to Congress only if the Senate also approves it.

"In Dallas, we have a federal judge running our jail, running our school system, running our state agencies," said Rep. Calvin Rucker, D-Cedar Hill.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY
 OFFICE OF THE DEAN OF ADMISSIONS AND RECORDS

To be eligible to purchase the Texas A&M ring, an undergraduate student must have at least one year in residence and credit for at least ninety-two (92) semester hours. A year in residence may consist of the fall and spring semesters or one of the above and a full summer session (both the first and second terms). The hours passed at the preliminary grade report period on March 12, 1975 may be used in satisfying this ninety-two hour requirement. Students qualifying under this regulation should leave their names with the ring clerk, room seven, Richard Coke Building. This should be done prior to March 12th in order for all records to be checked to determine ring eligibility. Students already having ninety-two (92) completed hours on record may order at any time since regular orders are sent in at the end of each month. Graduate students are eligible to order with proof (receipt) that they have filed for graduation.

Orders for mid semester will be taken by the ring clerk starting March 24, 1975 and will continue until May 1, 1975 at 4 p.m. All rings must be paid for in full when the order is placed. Students will save time if they bring grade reports along when ready to order. Students who fail to leave their names in advance will be asked to return later to allow time for records to be checked. The rings are due to arrive at the registrar's on June 17, 1975. All rings ordered, regardless of whether on March 24, 1975 or May 1, 1975, will arrive at the same time.

The ring clerk is on duty from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. of each week, Monday through Friday. However, in order for records to be checked, orders must be placed prior to 4 p.m. during this ordering period.

We hope this information will be helpful and extend our congratulations.
