2150 earn degrees

A&M will graduate 2150 students in ceremonies Friday night and Saturday morning in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Commissioning will be Saturday afternoon at 1:30 in the Coliseum with Final Review at 3:30 on the Drill Field.

Dr. John Boyd Page, president of the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States, will speak Friday night in the ceremonies beginning at 7:30 p.m. The doctoral and masters programs will graduate 389 with 818 students receiving their degrees from the undergraduate colleges Friday night.

James W. Aston will speak at the Saturday morning commencement exercises at 9 a.m. Aston is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Republic of Texas Corporation and vice chairman of the board and associate director of the Republic National Bank of Dallas.

Lt. Gen. Samuel Jaskilka, United States Marine Corps, will speak at the commissioning of the officers Saturday afternoon. Jaskilka is the Deputy Chief of Staff for Manpower for the Marine Corps.

Col. Robert H. Baine, assistant registrar, is in charge of the commencement exercises. The assistant registrar's office reported that the number of graduates will not be definite until Thursday at 5 p.m. when a final check will be made of all degree candidates.

House bill considers raises

The House Public Education Committee is considering a school finance bill that will raise starting teachers' salaries to $8,000 per year, Representative Bill Presnal, (D-Bryan), said Thursday.

A subcommittee has worked out the bill which would increase salaries for teachers $140 per month across the board for the 1975 school year.

Other provisions in the bill would increase transportation funds by approximately 75 percent with a smaller increase for maintenance and operations of public schools.

Several school finance bills have been proposed to the legislature.

"The subcommittee proposal represents a combination of all these," Presnal said.

The bill would also provide funds for a bilingual program for kindergarten through the third grade.
