Longhorns, Coogs tie for SWC golf crown

By MIKE BRUTON

Sports Editor LUBBOCK, Tex. — After trailing Texas by five strokes Friday, the Houston Cougars led by Keith Fergus came back Saturday to tie the Longhorns at 859 to earn a share of the Southwest Conference golf team championship.

At the end of 27 holes Texas led the pack at 424 behind the fine shooting of Lance Ten Broeck, who tallied a six-under par 66 for the initial 18 holes. Ten Broeck and teammate Tim Wilson finished tied at the top after the first day with identical 104's. Trailing them by one stroke were Robert Hoyt of Houston and Tech's Danny Walters.

Houston ended Friday's competition with a 429, followed by SMU (434), Tech (435), Rice (439) and Arkansas (449). The Aggies got a bad start and did not fare well on the front 27 holes. The A&M golfers found themselves in seventh place after the first day at 456, with TCU and Baylor bringing up the rear with 465 and 466

A&M coach Bob Ellis said the Ag golfers didn't hit the ball well on the first half of the tourney. but that he was confident that

Pan American series and had not even pitched an official inning. He lost a 1-0 three hitter to Pan Am and gave Oklahoma only four hits (one of which was very debatable) in seven and two thirds innings.

Robert Bonner gave the Aggies something to cheer about at shortstop with his super plays. Bonner was the talk of the series with his one leaping catch of a line drive that was a sure base hit and his almost unlimited range for ground balls. Along with his range Bonner has a shotgun for an arm. Any of his teammates will tell you that Bonner has the best arm on the team.

Although it ended on a losing note the 1975 edition of the Texas A&M baseball team had a great year. There will be a lot of holes to fill with the loss of six seniors, Jim Bratsen, Al Thurmond, Tommy Hawthorne, Fred Russ, Mike Frazier and Mike Schraeder (All starters). But with the likes of Bonner, All-SWC outfielder Bill Raymer and the entire pitching staff coming back the Aggies have a good start for another fine season next
