Portrait of the late Gen. Earl Rudder

Rudder portrait on display

The previously unveiled painting of the late Gen. Earl Rudder has been placed on permanent display in TAMU's auditorium and conference center complex that bears his name.

The color portrait of the former TAMU president is enclosed in an illuminated glass case located on the ground floor of the center's main auditorium and is visible from the lobby of the conference tower.

J. Anthony Wills of Houston was commissioned by the TAMU System Board of Directors to do the painting.

The painting was made possible by a portion of the contributions made to a memorial fund established shortly after Gen. Rudder died on March 23, 1970. He had been president of the university for 11 years.

Foundation grants money for community education

The Community Education Center at TAMU has received a Mott Foundation grant for its fifth year of operation.

The $169,449 grant provides for dissemination, consultation and training in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana through the TAMU center. It became effective July 1.

The funds tie in with state and federal money to help school districts start community education programs.

Cooperating grants of $10,000 each to the University of Arkansas and Southeastern Louisiana University are included in the TAMU award. The grant provides $37,000 for seed grants to school districts and funds five Community Education Fellowships.

Community education programs now operate in 38 Texas school districts. Forty-six more exist in the region served by the TAMU center.

The programs provide for full-time, year-around use of schools for educational and recreational purposes embracing needs of all citizens of a community. The concept has gained rapid acceptance at federal, state and local levels.

Developed by Charles S. Mott at Flint, Mich., community education now involves more than 700 U. S. schools.

Instead of locking schools during summers, holidays and after 5 p. m., districts are employing tax-supported buildings and facilities through community education to help the elderly, handicapped, lonely and needy. Programs can help persons improve a skill, acquire new skills and find ways to meet today's problems.

By early this year, nine states had enacted legislation supporting community education. The Texas Education Agency awarded planning grants of $1,200 to 56 school districts through May. Plans are to fund 100 school districts.

Governor Briscoe signed an amendment to the Adult Education Bill designating five per cent of its total funds to community education.

Federal funding of $3.5 million, awaiting Senate appropriations committee approval, has been designated by President Ford. The appropriation would go to local districts, state departments of education and institutions of higher learning for training community education personnel.

God asks you to give more than thanks.

The God we thank for the many blessings we have is the very same God who asks us to love and help our neighbors. "But there's nothing I can do," you say, "I am just one person." Then join with others at your synagogue or church. Together, you can accomplish wonders.

Like the congregation in Montana that found a lack of adequate housing for senior citizens. Today, these needy people have a new, non-profit place to live and be thankful for. But the congregation also has more to be thankful for than ever because they took collective and effective action.

Or consider the religious group in Atlanta that helps move families and elderly persons who can't afford a moving service.

There's no end to the need for neighborly help and the ways you can serve—if you really want to. Remember—you have more to give thanks about after you have been helpful.

Start treating your brothers and sisters like brothers and sisters.
