Aggie practice continues

Head coach Emory Bellard inspects the beef on the Kyle Field proving grounds.

Quarterback David Shipman tries to find his tight end.

Injured coach Paul Register utilizes his reserved box seat to get a closer view of the action.

The first day of classes didn't slow down the Texas Aggies any as the football squad zipped through a two-hour practice that drew praise from coach Emory Bellard.

"You did a great job today," Bellard told his squad. "You have established a good pace. Now keep it up."

Particularly impressive was the passing game. Quarterbacks David Shipman, Mike Jay and Keith Baker were near perfect with their passes, making the job easy for the receivers.

Receivers coach Chuck Moser was extremely pleased at the way his charges have performed this fall. "Carl Roaches is just tremendous. I don't know what more you can say about him. He has had two great scrimmages. He is better than ever on kick returns, and his downfield blocking is phenomenal."

"Mike Floyd is coming along and will do a good job behind Carl. We have three fine tight ends in Richard Osborne, David Greeno and Gary Haack. Flanker routes are something new this year, but Skip Walker, Jim Hartman and Darrell Smith are picking things up quickly. Overall, I'm very pleased with this group," Moser said.

Practice will continue daily until the Sept. 13 opener at Kyle field with Mississippi.
