The plan, approved in a 5-4 vote by the board, was submitted late Wednesday to U.S. District Court Judge William M. Taylor, a few hours before the court-imposed deadline.

The final plan will be discussed at several public hearings before Judge Taylor submits it to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Senate overrides education veto

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate overrode President Ford's veto of the $7.9 billion education appropriations bill Wednesday, enacting it into law.

The education measure was the first fiscal 1976 appropriations bill to be vetoed by the President.

The bill exceeded by $1.5 billion Ford's budget recommendation for educational expenditures this fiscal year.

However, much of that money authorized in the bill would be spent in future years.

Calley conviction stands

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — The Army court-martial conviction of William L. Calley Jr. for the murder of 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai was reinstated by a federal appeals court Wednesday.

The 8-5 decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected the defense contention, upheld in lower courts, that publicity had made Calley immune to trial. The ruling dealt with legal issues remaining in the case.

However, the 32-year-old former lieutenant remains free on bail, living as a civilian in Columbus, Ga., since his conviction was overturned Sept. 25, 1974. The Army has said that even if Calley wins the appeal he would immediately be paroled.

Lebanese enter fighting

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Lebanese government switched army commanders Wednesday and ordered troops to intervene between Muslims and Christians fighting each other with mortars, bombs and grenades in northern Lebanon.

The week's fighting — mostly involving Moslems from Tripoli and Christians from the nearby village of Zagharta — has killed at least 100 persons and wounded about 250 by official count. But security officials said their patrols could not enter some areas, and Tripoli residents said 12 more bodies were found in the streets Wednesday.

Home game date tickets will be rare

Date tickets are still available for the Texas A&M-Mississippi football game this Saturday, but few, if any, will be available for the remaining home games.

According to Wally Groff, athletic business manager, almost 17,150 season tickets have been sold. Since season ticket holders are guaranteed seats for all home games, and since there are 18,533 student seats reserved for each home game, that leaves 1,383 tickets to cover date, or "guest", ticket demands.

Also included in that group are all A&M students who did not purchase the season ticket coupon, but plan to buy tickets on an individual game basis.

Date tickets for the A&M-Mississippi game were available because the game was not a sell-out and extra sections were opened for students. However, the Baylor and University of Texas games are already sold out. No extra sections can be opened due to contractual agreements with these two schools.

Date tickets may be available for the Illinois and SMU games, unless the remaining 1,383 seats for each of these games are sold as season tickets. In that case, there will be no date tickets.

For the A&M-Mississippi game, seniors alone purchased 1,442 date tickets. Juniors purchased an additional 1,024 date tickets while figures for sophomore date ticket sales are not yet available. These sales have restricted seating in the sophomore and freshman student sections. Although not a factor in this week's game future high sales of date tickets to upperclassmen will restrict the number of date tickets for underclassmen. For example, if there are 1,000 tickets left after season ticket sales, and seniors buy all of these as date tickets, there will be no date tickets for the other classes.

LSU tickets

Student senate limits sales

By VICKIE ASHWILL
Staff Writer

The Student Senate last night limited ticket sales to the A&M-LSU game to currently-enrolled A&M students.

The senate also voted to keep the limit on tickets available per student to six, with the distribution system the same as for home games.

The original bill presented by Joe Marcello asked the senate to limit the number of tickets available per student to two in order to limit "scalping" (resale of tickets at prices higher than face value.)

Senators argued that under such conditions ticket lines would be longer and student groups traveling to LSU might be broken up.

Marcello said that the original intention of the proposal was to give A&M students a fair chance to get tickets that they had already, in part, paid for through Student Services Fees.

A&M is allowed only 888 seats for the Sept. 20 game. An additional 80 were reserved last year by the Memorial Student Center Travel Committee.

In other business, Student Government President Jeff Dunn briefly covered his goals and ambitions for the upcoming year.

Dunn emphasized the need for communication between the senate and the student body. He also said he hopes for more student input on university and community committees.

"I hope that professor evaluations of the entire campus can be accomplished this fall," Dunn said, "and hopefully choice of professors by spring."

"Student Senate should have more control over Student Services fees," he continued, "and we should work toward the establishment of a University ombudsman to handle student complaints about the campus."

Five new bills were put before the senate for presentation and questioning only. They will be voted on at the next senate meeting.

One new resolution will seek approval of the Student Radio contract with both Midwest Video and Community cable companies. The cable companies have more than 17,000 subscribers on these cables and will air their first show Oct. 10.

External Affairs Vice President Jerri Ward presented a funding request for the Texas Student Association. The bill would allow for inclusion of an optional check-off fee of 25¢ on students' semester fee slips.

A proposal to cancel contract with American Publishers, Inc. for the printing of campus maps was also introduced, since lower bids have been received.

The other two bills requested purchase of bulletin boards and an additional typewriter for the senate office.

The senate approved the formation of an Athletic Ticket Evaluation Committee to study the football ticket distribution system started this fall. Marty Clayton was appointed chairman of the eight person committee.

A suggestion box for students' comments about the system will be placed in the Student Government office, Room 216 of the MSC.

Electronic 'bug' remains unused

By JERRY NEEDHAM
Staff Writer

The College Station Police Department has had a $500 miniature electronic surveillance device for a year now but has yet to use it in an actual criminal case to gather evidence.

The device, commonly known as a "bug," was purchased jointly by the Brazos Valley Development Council (BVDC) and the police department.

The device was purchased from a grant obtained through the Criminal Justice Division of the BVDC.

"We've got it to use and I'm sure we'll use it eventually," Police Chief Marvin Byrd said Tuesday.

He said the device is legal. Byrd said the only attempt to use it was in the concrete confines of the police department where reception was barely audible in the next room.

He said the device is supposed to have an effective range of one-eighth to one-quarter of a mile.

The transmitter itself, kept locked in a storage closet at the police station, is easily concealed on a person as it is only slightly larger than a pack of cigarettes.

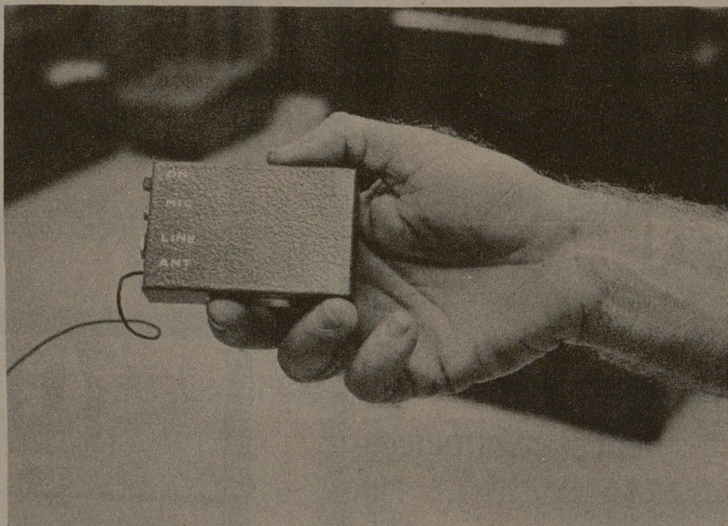

A wire leading from the transmitter can be attached to any sort of small microphone, but was originally equipped with a microphone that looks like a silver fountain pen.

The police also own a homing device but it also has not been used in a case. When attached to a car, the device transmits a signal to a nearby receiver in a police vehicle.

The listener can then determine the distance and direction of the car being followed by the changes in the signal's tone.

Byrd said the homing device has been used only in a test exercise.

Fromme's friend lists six more targets

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Sandra Good, a roommate of Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, said Wednesday that at least six Southeastern businessmen and their wives are the targets of assassins.

"Assassinations are necessary since people are asking for trouble by hurting the Earth and from what they are programming on television," Miss Good told Bob Ruby of WWL-radio in a taped telephone conversation from Sacramento, Calif.

Ruby said he had phoned Miss Good to get more information about Miss Fromme, indicted Wednesday on a federal charge of attempting to assassinate President Ford.

But Miss Good, also a follower of Charles Manson, instead said an "International Court of Retribution" would kill the following businessmen within the station's broadcast area:

- Floyd Lewis of New Orleans, president of Middle South Utilities, Inc., which Miss Good said threatened the people by planning to build nuclear reactors;
- Gordon Ryan of New Orleans, an attorney and executive with Starr Broadcasting Co.
- Fred Kaiser of Atlanta, Ga., a candy manufacturer;
- Herbert Grey of Atlanta;
- William Berrin of Atlanta;
- And Richard Davis of Houston, Tex., an oilman.

Miss Good said the businessmen's wives would be hacked to death first, since they are guilty of pushing their husbands to continue instead of reconsidering their actions.

"Anyone who pollutes the Earth, destroys wildlife, or cuts down trees had better stop now or they and their wives will be terribly, terribly murdered," said Miss Good.

But she avoided saying she was personally involved in the plots, saying only that she had direct access to information on who would be assassinated.

In the 30-minute conversation, she also said Manson's "family" was also deeply involved.

A spokesman for WWL said Miss Good also threatened Ruby's life, but that was edited out of the tape which was broadcast. He said, however, that the FBI passed by the station Wednesday to pick up a copy of the taped conversation.
