

Physical functions controlled by mind

DALLAS — A Dallas psychologist believes man may have an inherent mental ability to control the most minute physical structure, including his brain.

Dr. Frances Moss Mayo is doing extensive research with sensitive devices which detect and monitor such activities as the heart rate, brain waves, fingertip temperatures and muscle tensions and can relay them to the mind that can control them.

In an interview Wednesday, she said, "Through the use of the equipment, people are becoming aware of tensions their bodies are taking on, and of their ability to control or change this."

The psychologist said the important thing about relaxing and meditating is making all possible information available to the subject.

Sleeping sickness moves to Dallas

HOUSTON - Area health officials added three more persons Wednesday to their list of people suspected of having St. Louis encephalitis (SLE), bringing to 14 the number of suspected victims.

There have been nine confirmed cases of the sleeping sickness virus since Aug. 27. All but two of the confirmed cases have recovered. Two hospitalized victims were reported ready to be released.

City Health Director Dr. Albert C. Randall said more than 160 residents in the general area east of downtown had been tested for the virus.

Randall said there was no cause for alarm about the SLE outbreak. He said progress is being made by the Harris County Mosquito Control District to eliminate the mosquitoes that transmit the disease to humans and also the birds from which the mosquitoes get SLE.

Health authorities will meet again Monday to discuss the SLE outbreak, the first to occur here since 1964 when 32 persons died and more than 750 were thought to have the disease.

Meanwhile, in Dallas, public health officials report three confirmed cases and one suspected case of encephalitis. However, two of the confirmed cases are believed to have been contracted outside the Dallas area.

Public health officials said the first case was a 28-year-old woman, who became ill while visiting Arkansas. The second case was a man who had been visiting Houston where the disease had broken out. He became ill and returned to Dallas, where the disease was diagnosed.

Dallas health director Dr. Lowell Berry said city crews have been ordered to step up spraying in the areas where standing water is prevalent.

Dallas police threaten walkout

DALLAS - Members of the Dallas Police Association say they will turn in their badges and walk out if Lt. Charles Burnley, president of the organization, is suspended or fined because of a letter critical of Councilwoman Lucy Patterson.

Burnley came under attack from the council for describing Mrs. Patterson "as the policeman's adversary" and accusing her of holding prejudices against police officers "which grows too deep."

The council has ordered City Manager George Schrader to meet with Burnley to discuss the matter and report back to the council as soon as possible.

Burnley said, "Apparently they (the council) don't think city employees have any civil rights. Everyone has the right to criticize public officials, everyone."

Al Lipscomb, director of the South Dallas Information Center, and Fred Bell, a director of the Black Panther Party, appeared before the council Monday and demanded that Burnley be indefinitely suspended or that he resign.

The police association voted 157-16 to back Burnley and "to be sure if any action is taken we make sure our rights are preserved."

In nearby Irving, two police sergeants have been voicing some strong opinions on the need for more department personnel.

Sgt. Michael Evers said, "I would call members of the Irving Police Association militant."

Sgt. Travis Hall said, "I would call it more of being aware."

The city council approved a $19.26 million budget last week but didn't provide for any new police personnel. Evers said the action will "force us to do what we have to do to get to the people." He said there would be no strike, but that other steps were possible.

Hall said, "They know we can use the courts. We dropped a suit against them because the city can't pay out all the taxpayers' money it wants. We would run out of money first."

In Corsicana, police and firemen will proceed with lawsuits to force the city to use collective bargaining in 1975 contract disputes.

A collective bargaining ordinance, approved by voters in April 1974, was repealed in a special election Tuesday by a vote of 894-604.

The legal action involves only this year's contract talks and will not affect future negotiations. The police and firemen filed the lawsuits when contract talks failed to solve a dispute over 1975 salaries.

Bullock persists

AUSTIN — "Bullock's Raiders" have taken on a new look and vow to stay on the job until all $55 million in delinquent sales taxes have been collected or written off.

"We are going to cover the whole state in two weeks, and then do it again and again until we are satisfied we have collected them or they are uncollectible," said Arthur Vance, an assistant to Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Vance said Wednesday that three teams, each consisting of a lawyer and a tax expert, have been set up to make raids and seize property of businesses that have not remitted sales taxes to the state.

The job has intensified. About 15 raiders are working full time to work the list down, Vance said.

If a business has gone bankrupt, the task force, headed by former Asst. Atty. Gen. Benny Sarrett, will try to recover the taxes from the receiver, he said.
