

Driven to insanity

Hearst tells of torture

Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst swore Tuesday that she was driven to insanity by Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers who tortured her mentally and physically.

Miss Hearst, in a startling written affidavit, said she did not willingly join the SLA and had returned to the San Francisco area to discover whether her parents still loved her. She said the radical band locked her in a chest for several weeks, then forced her to help rob a bank on threat of instant execution if she disobeyed.

The written testimony did not seek to explain Patty's apparent show of radical ardor since her arrest — clenched fist salutes, greetings to radical comrades, a self-description as urban-guerilla on a prison form. Instead, the document said she still may be insane.

"Her recollection of everything that transpired from shortly after the bank incident up to the time that she was arrested, has been as though she lived in a fog... in a perpetual state of terror," the affidavit said.

Her parents suggested she be hospitalized for mental treatment and be examined by a psychiatrist familiar with prisoner-of-war brainwashing.

Miss Hearst, 21, captured by the FBI last Thursday, a year and a half after her kidnaping, appeared in court Monday to seek reduction in her bail.

A federal court judge on Friday revoked bail, but said he would consider arguments that she be allowed to go free on bond.

Miss Hearst currently is being held in lieu of $500,000 bond.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter delayed consideration of that question pending the examination by court-appointed psychiatrists and ordered a progress report by next Tuesday.

The slender red-haired heiress sat mute beside her attorneys, her face frozen in the same stony expression she has maintained in court since her arrest. Asked by Judge Carter whether she wished to comment, she shook her head no, but did not speak.

Miss Hearst's affidavit detailed only the three-month period after her Feb. 4, 1974 kidnaping. The narrative ended after the April 1974 robbery of the Hibernia Bank in San Francisco during which she was photographed wielding an automatic rifle.

After that, the statement said, her mind is blank.

It was in succeeding months that the SLA sent tapes from Miss Hearst announcing she had joined the SLA, calling her family "pigs" and declaring she was now "Tania," a revolutionary.

"She has attempted to reconstruct the events which intervened between the bank episode and her present situation," the affidavit said, "but the very prospect of going back over so painful and terrible a path has prevented her from even attempting to do so."

The statement said she was forced to make early tape recordings while locked in a closet blindfolded, unable to eat or dispose of her bodily wastes.

It said SLA member "Cinque," since identified as convict Donald DeFreeze, forced her to make the first tapes with constant threats of death. He was the only person who spoke to her, she said.

She said Cinque and the others tormented her with reports that her family had abandoned her, that the Hearsts would not comply with ransom demands and "it was all right with them if she were put to death."

They also told her, she said, that she would be shot on sight by lawmen if she were captured.

Shortly before her arrest, Miss Hearst contended, she experienced "lucid intervals" in which she suspected her parents still cared for her. She came back to San Francisco to find out their feelings, the statement contended.

... She began to doubt that her parents were involved in any plan for her destruction and wished, by some contrivance, to learn what their feelings toward her were, and whether they would accept her back and give her some of the help which she so desperately needed," the affidavit said.

"For this purpose, she decided to return to San Francisco, to try to find some method of establishing communication with her parents, to discover whether or not she was to really be murdered on sight by officers of the law, or if these beliefs were delusions and hallucinations."

She said that when FBI agents came to her door Thursday she was still in a "distorted condition" and, "she thought that she would be instantly killed."

Reportedly, there had been a split among the fugitives, with Miss Hearst gaining support from Wendy Yoshimura, 32, another fugitive being held on weapons charges unrelated to the SLA.

Judge refuses reduction of Patty's lover's bail

Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO — A U.S. magistrate refused Tuesday to reduce bail for Steven Soliah during a hearing at which Soliah was described as Patricia Hearst's lover.

"I lived with him. I finally saw him in jail. They let me kiss him," Miss Hearst was quoted as having told a friend, Patricia Tobin, last Saturday when she visited her at San Mateo County Jail.

Asst. U.S. Atty. David Bancroft told Magistrate Owen Woodruff Jr. that authorities had obtained a conversation between Miss Hearst and Miss Tobin, an old friend, in which Miss Hearst asked about Soliah.

No explanation was given during the hearing as to how the two had met in jail. It was the first public indication that Miss Hearst had met with either of the males arrested in the case, Soliah and William Harris.

It also was the first indication that the 21-year-old newspaper heiress apparently had a second lover during her months in hiding. In a tape recording shortly after the May 1974 shootout in Los Angeles in which six Symbionese Liberation Army members died, Miss Hearst revealed that she had been in love with one of them, William Wolfe.

Bancroft appeared to be reading from a transcript as he described Miss Hearst's conversation with Miss Tobin. He did not say during the hearing how he had obtained the conversation and he refused to tell news reporters afterwards.

Soliah's attorney, Steffan Imhoff, said, "I assume they got it illegally. It is a violation of state and federal law to transcribe a conversation without one or both persons' consent."

Bancroft said that when Miss Tobin asked Miss Hearst whether Soliah had rented the outer Mission district house where she was captured last Thursday, Miss Hearst said no, Bancroft said. But then she added that she had lived with him and had been allowed to see him in jail.

Soliah, a 27-year-old house painter being held on $75,000 bail, is accused of harboring a fugitive by allegedly renting the house where Miss Hearst was captured.

Firearm charges dropped

Associated Press
LOS ANGELES — Federal firearms charges against Patricia Hearst and William and Emily Harris were dismissed here Tuesday in "the interest of justice," U.S. Atty. William D. Keller said.

Keller said he moved to dismiss the charges because they arose from the same incident, a shootout at a suburban Inglewood sporting goods store, as more serious Los Angeles County charges.

Keller said the dismissal of federal charges, accusing the trio of violation of the federal Firearms Act use of an automatic weapon, "eliminates an unnecessary parallel prosecution."

The Harris face 18 felony counts brought by the district attorney for the shootout, while Miss Hearst has 19 charges against her. They include assault with intent to commit murder, assault with a deadly weapon, kidnaping, robbery and auto theft.

Miss Hearst was accused of laying down a barrage of bullets from an automatic rifle to cover the escape of the Harris after William was caught allegedly shoplifting in the Inglewood store.

The incident occurred the day before the Los Angeles shootout that left six other Symbionese Liberation Army members dead.

Meanwhile, Acting Dist. Atty. John Howard said Tuesday that he expected the Harris to appear for arraignment here "during the middle of next week." He said there was no indication when Miss Hearst would be arraigned here.
