Beach couple plays unique keyboard

By JOHN VANORE
Battalion Staff Writer

Yes, there once was a "Beach Girl." She and her husband, former Beach Boys keyboard wizard Daryl Dragon, have a band together now. They call themselves the Captain and Tennille.

They performed at a Town Hall Special Attraction performance Saturday to a crowd of 1,800. Aggie-land was the second stop on their tour, following the success of their debut hit, "Love Will Keep Us Together."

Kip Adotta's forty-five minute comic set loosened the audience for the headliners, the Captain and Tennille. Backing up the husband-and-wife team were three vocalists (two sisters and a brother-in-law), plus a drummer and a bassist.

"Our sound is a keyboard sound," Tennille said. "We wanted to be different."

Dragon got his start with the Beach Boys in 1967 and, while on a tour, bought himself a captain's hat. During a keyboard solo, Brian Wilson introduced him as the "Captain of Keyboards." Needless to say, the name stuck.

When he left the Beach Boys in 1972 with his wife Toni, they got their start playing nightclubs as a duo.

Since that time, they have expanded their act and released two singles. The first, "The Way I Want to Touch You," was only a regional hit in the Los Angeles area. But it got them signed to a major label.

That song also opened their set Saturday night.

The Captain consistently displayed his keyboard artistry, but was also noticeably silent most of the time. Very rarely did he speak or sing.

Tennille was the group's lead vocalist, introducing the band and the songs, and establishing a rapport with the audience.

About halfway through the hour-and-a-half show, Tennille brought the Captain into the limelight for a short "Fifties-style" routine.

This led into a moving rendition of "Daniel," a former hit single by Elton John. Tennille sang back-up on Elton John's "Caribou" album, and this song is in their repertoire as a form of acknowledgement to him.

Saturday night was a time for the Captain and Tennille to try out songs from their soon-to-be released second album. One of these songs was "1954 Boogie Blues."

Finally, they did it. The song everyone was waiting for. The first verse was in Spanish, and the rest was in English. Toni Tennille explained the story behind the Spanish version.

"The people associated with A&M (Records) in the Latin countries... loved the song, and asked for a Spanish lyric for release in the own countries... A&M Records sent it out to DJ's and thought they'd get a kick out of it. And caught on. So, by request of the Spanish people, we had an alternate version of 'Love Will Keep Us Together.'"

They ended the show with a doleful encore. It was marked by a lovely version of Billy Preston's "You Are So Beautiful."

Throughout the show, there was high energy level onstage. Tennille attributes their popularity to this.

"People could bring their friends to see us," she said, "and we'd really be as good as people told them were."

With consistently good shows such as this past one, they'll be around for a while.

Board to set date for bond election

The A&M Consolidated School Board will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. to set a date for the $5,506,000 bond election approved by the board on Sept. 23.

The meeting will be in the Special Services Building at 1300 Jersey St.

Board member Bruce Robeck said Monday night he hopes the board will also discuss the bond issue in more detail.

"I am dissatisfied with the lack of specifics in the wording of the bond issue," he said.

The board will also discuss and possibly appoint a replacement for O. C. Cooper who recently resigned from the board for "personal reasons."

Also on the agenda is discussion of goals and objectives for the school district that will be presented next year to the Texas Education Agency's Division of School Accreditation.

The presentation of these goals is a requirement for accreditation for which the district is applying.

Board member Bruce Robeck said Monday night he hopes the board will also discuss the bond issue in more detail.

"I am dissatisfied with the lack of specifics in the wording of the bond issue," he said.
