I'm not the Quarterback

By DAVID WALKER

ems like only yesterday I was getting all excited because season was starting and Ole Miss was coming to town and e was predicting great things for the Texas Aggies.

it isn't yesterday, it's today and I'm still excited, it's still season and SMU is coming to town. I't bother you with what happened in the SMU game last year you've heard that enough already. I will talk about that aggies entered that weekend with an almost sure trip to the Bowl but if something happened they had a sure trip to the lowl.

I in general and what it meant to the Aggies.

was a deal with the Gator Bowl between A&M and Texas that r of the Aggie-Longhorn game would go to that one since the would go Cotton pickin. deal was made the week before the A&M-SMU and Baylor ames. Even if one of the schools slipped the deal would still ecause the winner of the Aggie-Longhorn game would still go Cotton Bowl.

yone looked great. The Aggies and Longhorns were taken care he poor Baylor Bears were going to have to stay home. , one of the schools did slip; A&M lost to SMU. After that game eped into the Aggie dressing room that Baylor had just gone Texas in Waco. There were quite a few smiles and everyone nty happy that the Horns were getting beat. Oh, if we only en what we know now hat everyone knew couldn't happen did and we spent the s watching TV.

nother year and this time there has been no deal, that's illegal til Nov. 15.

s not far off and you can bet your bottom dollar that there are Bowl folks who want to see the Aggies in their Bowl.

Gator, Sun, Orange and Bluebonnet Bowls all would like to Aggies in their post season affairs. The Orange Bowl hinted y that they may even wait past the Nov. 15 signing time the teams that they wanted still had important games left on

I and Texas are both on the Orange Bowl list along with Ohio ad Michigan. Penn State, Florida, and Alabama are also on the s a short list but it's even shorter when you figure that either ate or Michigan is going to the Rose Bowl, either A&M or going to the Cotton Bowl and Alabama has just about decided g to the Sugar Bowl.

lice to be wanted. Bowl talk will be out in full force after this weekend's action and ekend could be more important than one thinks. If Rice could by have three of the last four years) knock off Arkansas, it would hat the A&M-Texas game would indeed decide the Cotton ost with the loser going to another bowl.

ansas goes out this weekend and the Ags and Longhorns win, ld assure both teams of a bowl because any of the "biggies" like to have a deal where they could have either A&M or Texas.

A and Texas would love nothing better than to be able to have a th some bowl that would take care of both of them.

f this is just guessing, but things look good in Aggieland at this They looked good this time last year but everyone has a year's ence and they know what it's like to not be in a bowl when they to be in one. It won't happen again this time.

ll be a long time before Nov. 15 with all of the talk about who's here. But one thing is for sure, it's in the hands of the Texas and no one knows that better than the Aggies themselves. next two games are probably the most important ones that have ayed around here since the Cotton Bowl of 1967. It will be
