

Aggie ruggers take 14-3 pounding by Austin Huns

By DR. GERARD A. O'DONOVAN

There were two games scheduled last Saturday featuring the Aggie Whites and Aggie Maroons versus the Austin Huns. Only one took place.

When nothing is at stake, perhaps one should not complain, but there is a set of ethics in rugby to which real affiliated Rugby Union (amateur) teams adhere with unquestioned allegiance. One of the set rules is to show up for all the games scheduled before the season begins. It is true, that circumstances (e.g. earthquakes) may on occasion cause the referee to call off a game, but it is not in the Rugby tradition to fail to show up when all arrangements have been made.

The Austin Huns did not notify TAMU Rugby Club President Billy Goodrich until Thursday night that they could not field two teams.

Two weeks notice at least should be given, as a courtesy. The Maroons, who were so exciting last week against Baylor Medical School in Houston were deprived of an opponent, and the large audience on hand to see them were cheated too. This must never happen again. Lack of communication, they call it, in Bedford!

Yes, there was a game, but in effect, neither the Whites nor the Maroons played the Huns' number one team. In the first half, the Aggies fielded some regulars from the White squad and some from the Maroons to insure that everyone got a chance to play. The game was tightly refereed as usual, by Tony King and the hybrid Aggies, who have chosen to be called the "Mar-ites," were tied at the half, 3-3. Tim Field, unerringly, found the range, into the sun and wind from 45 yards. The Austin Hun kicker stroked one beautifully moments later for three points and the half-time tie.

Wholesale changes were made by the Aggies at the interval, which altered the tempo of the Ags' passing and greatly slowed up play.

Tim Field played the full 80 minutes at fullback, going one for two in the "stop that so-and-so with the ball department." The Huns scored two unconverted tries and a penalty without reply in the second half for their impressive 14-3 victory.

The Huns had a scrumhalf that fired the ball one-handed like a soccer goalkeeper to his backs so fast that several fine runs ensued. The unorthodox play could have resulted in two tries but one was stopped by Tim Field and the other should have been, though Field found himself all alone and there were two Huns bearing down on him, one of whom had the ball, a nasty situation indeed! Experience, that great teacher, helped Field later, as when a toy was imminent, he made a diving tackle and ever alert Rick Reno and Phil Cook were there.

Backs and forwards followed up the play, and the Ags were saved when John Rayton found touch. Alan Jeffrey's deft touches were frequently wasted because of so many new faces and the scrum without Billy Goodrich is like that tire company without the blimp.

Ray Zwartjes, the hooker, is a fierce open-field tackler, as well as an excellent lineout man. He played the full 80 minutes. Curly Hillard is fast becoming an excellent and confident scrumhalf, and his passes are pinpoint and grow longer and better each week. Alan and The British Isles pair can handle anything. Speedster Billy Tigner is out for the semester with a knee injury. Wayne Womack and the ferocious Tim Fitch were solid as usual and Rick Reno plays every play as if it were his last.

A newcomer to the lineup must be mentioned. His name is David Bischofhausen, but the scrum rhymes his nickname with Fitch. At 6-5, the big man is one to watch. He is a senior in the Corps and will play the eighth man this week for the Whites at TCU. Both the Whites and the Maroons will play two games against the Horned Frogs.

On Saturday, the Whites play the Fort Worth-TCU Rugby Club at 12:30 p.m. while the Maroons take on Denton at 2 p.m. on the TCU campus. On Sunday the Whites play Dallas Rugby Club's number one side and the Maroons will play Dallas' number two. The squad's motto: Be alert. Boy, do we need more lets!

NOTE: THE DEFENDING CHAMPION AGGIES HAVE BEEN GRANTED PERMISSION TO HOST THE 1975 NATIONAL COLLEGIATE RUGBY CHAMPIONSHIP. WE NEED HELP AT ALL LEVELS. TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY ADMINISTRATION BEING WILLING. DATES ARE MARCH 27-28.

Fotiu, Hoganson traded

HARTFORD, Conn. — Left wing Nick Fotiu and goaltender Paul Hoganson of the World Hockey Association-New England Whalers were sent Tuesday to two minor league teams, cutting the squad to 20 players, a Whaler spokesman said.

Fotiu was sent to the Cape Codders of the North American Hockey League and Hoganson went to the Philadelphia Firebirds of the same league, the spokesman said.

Coach and general manager Jack Kelley said Fotiu needed more work on developing his skills and that Hoganson was cut because the team already had two good goaltenders in Christer Abrahamsson and Bruce Landon.
