Contributing Commentary

A few weeks ago Coach Shelby Metcalf asked me what I thought we needed to do to beat the Longhorns. I had made the precalculation (educated guess!) for a Sports Illustrated letter, so I stuck to my guns. I said that Texas would not score more than 17, under any circumstances. Could we score 18 or more? I felt positive that such was the case. That our final tally was but a score (20), was due only in part to the Texas defense! "Somebody up there liked them," as Bud Wilkinson would say! Master Marty Akins was fit and well then; I use the word "Master" on purpose after I read his childlike remarks in Thursday's Dallas Morning News. Marty, you received one vote too many on the writer's all-American team from this neck of the woods, and if you plan to be a professional, watch and listen to the young Earl Campbell. Had Kenny Stabler been quarterback of the 'Horns, the consensus, everywhere, even in Austin, is that the result would have been the same!

Thank the Texas defense for a far above par performance.

Knight sues to dissolve 10 man rule

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — The National Collegiate Athletic Association hasn't said how it will counter Indiana University Coach Bobby Knight's court suit to eliminate the present 10-man basketball traveling squad restriction.

But football Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama lost a similar football case to the association, which might counter-attack Knight virtually from the same position.

The situation arose shortly after Aug. 15, when the NCAA adopted a rule limiting road teams to 48 players in football and 10 in basketball. About a week later, Bryant filed a class action suit against the NCAA and received a favorable verdict. A temporary injunction against the rule lasted just one game, however, before being suspended by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals which refused to treat the case as "one of high importance."

This had the effect of denying a quick hearing and placing the case well back on the docket where presumably it still exists.

Knight's suit is scheduled for a preliminary hearing at 9 a.m., EST, Saturday in Monroe Circuit Court here. It asks for a permanent injunction against the 10-man traveling squad rule.

"Essentially it is an action I brought," says the coach of the top-ranked Hoosiers. "I chose to do it on my own without involving the university."

He also feels there is little in common with the Bryant suit because "basketball is an entirely different entity."

Reconsideration of limitations is expected during the NCAA convention next month.

Meanwhile, the Atlantic Coast Conference coaches voted unanimously to support Knight in his suit.

Colorado, look forward with glee to meeting Texas in Houston. They want Marty to play, in the worst way. So did we, but not as a hobbling passenger, as he was last Friday, but as the wizard that I called him many times this season.

Constanzo, the kid, should have been named starter by Coach Roayl, from the beginning. Let Akins suit up and we would never know, and neither will Texas, now, if the magician at any moment might come in and do a Jurgenson on us! That Texas did not drop out of the top ten in either the AP or UPI polls is positive proof how good the Aggies are.

One man who was up in the ABC-TV box was Frank Broyles, the tactical, tall precision coach of the Arkansas Razorbacks.

He saw what he saw, and you can be sure he will have his lads primed for some kind of Aggie-land steak. In our practices, this week, Coach Bellard knew it well. I watched the offense twice and the defense once. I get frightened watching the defense!

I have a hunch, that Coach Robertson will settle for nothing less than "broyled" pork chops, a la carte! There must be no let-down, for this one is for all the marbles. Those doubters of a few weeks ago have been decimated now, and do you know that many of them do not even remember their doubts? Daily they are joining the ever-growing Aggie band wagon, surprised, but unquestionably ecstatic. They too have waited eight years.

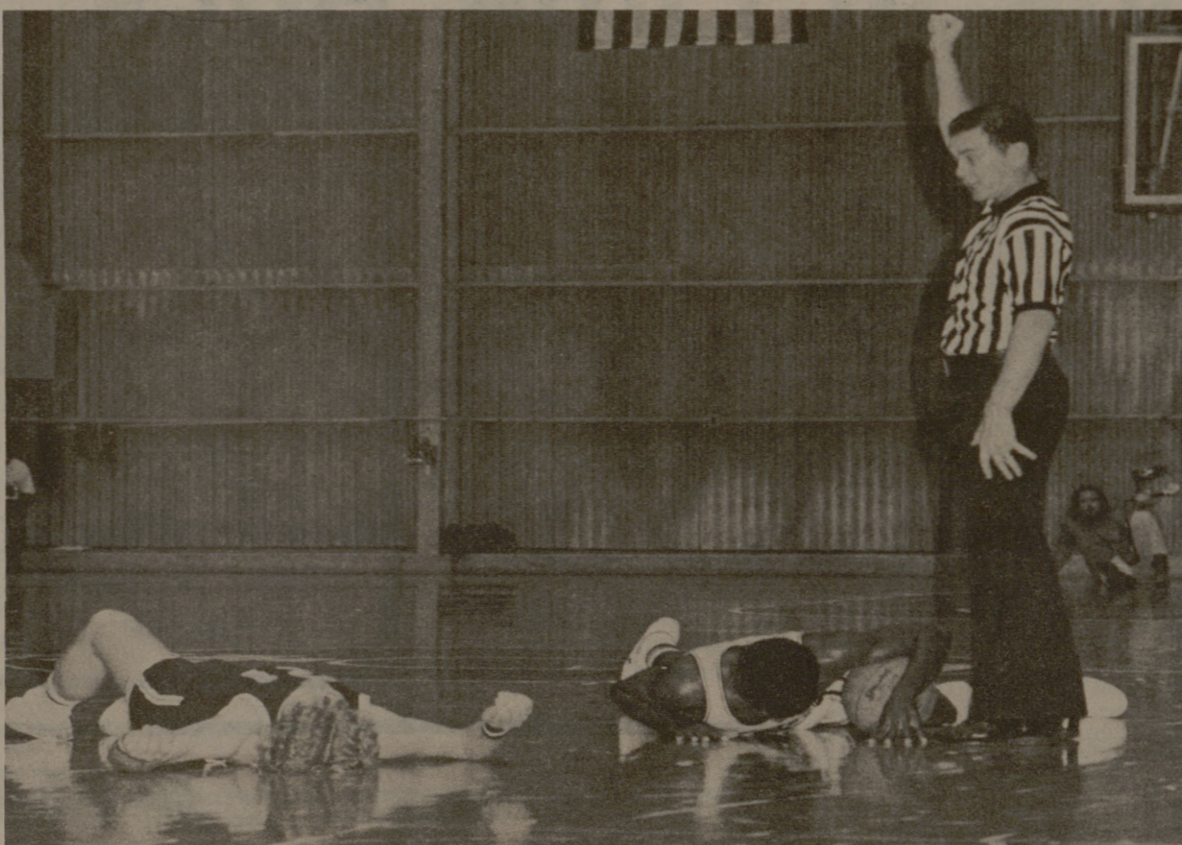

Let-downs are not as frequent as the so-called syndrome myth I spoke of last week. They do happen. Green Bay beat Dallas recently, and last week powerful San Jose State (Pacific Coast Athletic Association Champions) wilted beneath the leis in Hawaii.

A few years ago, Harold Wilson, Labor Prime Minister of Britain was shoe-in according to the polls to defeat his Conservative rival, Edward Heath, by the biggest margin in history. He lost. The reason was a fundamental one; to win, the public must vote!

"Things turn out best for those who make the best of the way things turn out," as John Wooden so succinctly put it in his book, "They Call Me Coach." So it has been with our majestic Aggies this year. There is absolutely no reason to stop now and overconfidence is a word used only in loser's locker rooms.

Arkansas, at home in Little Rock, will not be easy pickings, but lest we forget, bear in mind that for the second week in a row we will be on national television and a resounding victory, away from home, will go a long way towards a national championship. Idle teams are always at a disadvantage at season's end.

What a way to end the careers of those seniors of Bellard's proud bunch and wait them unscathed into the Cotton Bowl. May I add that I emphatically wish to include those marvelous spirited lads who never played a down. For these, and the courageous Mike Jay, let us play even harder than we did against Texas.

McDonald's INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

Jim Knight, substituting for Jim Vazquez awaits to return the ball as his teammate, Peter Chao looks on. The event is the All-University doubles tennis tournament held in the basement of the MSC. Chao and Vazquez advanced into the quarterfinals by defeating Jason Nestor and Rick Alexander.

Women defeat Civilians in All-U playoff

Scandia, the Women's division winners, defeated Walton, the Civilian champs, in a playoff game leading to the All-University title this week. Walton won the first game of the match by a score of 9 to 5. Games are played to 15 points or 15 minutes, whichever comes first. In the second game, the Women rallied, and despite the height advantage of the Walton men, won 15-10. In the third and final game Scandia clearly outplayed Walton and the score was 14-7 in favor of the former after 15 minutes. This put Scandia in the semi-finals of the All-University Volleyball Championship.

Badminton Champions

Intramural Badminton singles and doubles swung into their final matches last week and the division winners were decided.

In doubles action in the Women's division, first place was clinched by the team of Emma Gibbons and Laura Kitzmiller, with second place going to Nancy Faldik and Sue Covell. In the Men's division of doubles, Randy Carr and Kent Douglas placed first, with George Dennis and Greg Bostwick getting second.

The singles category ended with Emma Gibbons and Arlene Barker taking first and second, respectively, in the Women's division. Randy Carr took first to Kent Douglas' second in the men's division.
