

Student Radio to return to air in early spring

Student Radio is out there, but you can't hear it yet.

Texas A&M's student-run radio station will return to the air at the first of the semester.

Student Radio left the air last August to replace its dilapidated equipment with all-new, solid state equipment. The installation was to have taken a matter of weeks, but instead took a matter of months.

The exact opening date has not been decided upon but will be scheduled soon after testing of all equipment has been completed. The station has been broadcasting a test signal the past several days.

Student Radio operates over Community Cablevision and Midwest Video cable companies at 89.1 FM. The station has plans to broadcast around the clock in the near future, says Station Manager Scott Sherman. The station has also added a set of call letters, KANM, for A&M University.

'Inalienable rights' basis for Israeli-Arab resolution

Associated Press
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Arab delegates say they have agreed in principle on a resolution to put before the Security Council calling for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory and recognition of the "inalienable national rights" of the Palestinians as the basis for any Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

High-level sources said differences remain over what to stress and assessment of the U.S. position, but a draft of the resolution is expected by the end of the week.

The sources said the United States may be amenable to a resolution promoting the "legitimate interests" of the Palestinians but will veto one that calls for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territories.

Speaking Tuesday in the second day of council debate on the Arab-Israeli dispute, Ambassador Mouaffak Alaf of Syria called for four steps to a peace settlement: "total Israeli withdrawal," recognition of Palestinian rights, a declaration of peace and a Security Council meeting to consider "peace requirements and guarantees."

Egyptian delegate A. Esmate Abdel Meguid also called on Israel to withdraw from all the occupied territories and recognize the rights of the Palestinians, "not only for the sake of abiding by the numerous United Nations resolutions but to win acceptance in the Middle East."

He also called for a resumption of the Geneva peace conference, which met once in December 1973 and then adjourned while Secretary of State Henry S. Kissinger tried to work out a series of limited agreements between Israel and each of its Arab adversaries.

Arab sources said the Palestine Liberation Organization in its speech at the start of the debate Monday indirectly recognized Israel's right to exist for the first time and indicated it would accept the creation of a separate Palestinian state alongside a shrunken Israel.

The PLO previously demanded that the Jewish state be replaced by a secular Palestinian state which in effect would be dominated by the Arabs. But the sources said chief PLO delegate Farouk Kaddoumi signaled the policy shift by indicating approval of a partition plan proposed in 1948 by the U.N. mediator in the first Arab-Israeli war, the late Count Folke Bernadotte.

Bernadotte proposed an Arab state made up of the Negev desert, the Gaza Strip and the West Bank of the Jordan river; a Jewish state made up of Galilee and the coastal area down to the Gaza Strip; and U.N. control of Jerusalem, with all faiths guaranteed unimpeded access to the holy places.

Such a partition would leave Israel with about half the territory it had before the 1967 war.

Coalition threatened; Italian government shaky

Associated Press
ROME — Premier Aldo Moro must liberalize his tight-money economic program to get the Socialist support he needs to form a new government, Socialist party leader Francesco de Martino says.

De Martino told newsmen Tuesday night, after Moro accepted President Giovanni Leone's mandate to try to form a new cabinet, that the "central issue" in the political crisis is renegotiation of the industrial recovery plan now before Parliament.

"The measures of the outgoing government were absolutely unacceptable," the Socialist leader said.

Moro's Christian Democrats base their economic policy on tight credit and restricted government investment. This has reduced the inflation rate from 25 per cent to 16 per cent, but the Socialists are demanding a liberalization because unemployment has soared to 7 per cent of the work force of 20 million.

De Martino also reiterated his party's demand that the new government be built on "an agreement among all democratic forces, without exceptions on the left" — a reference to demands for a Communist voice in national policy.

The Communists, Italy's second largest party and the largest Communist party in the West, are powerful in local administrations but have been excluded from national power for the past 28 years.

Moro, who resigned last week after the Socialists withdrew their support from his minority coalition of Christian Democrats and Republicans, indicated he hoped to work out a new special relationship with the Socialists. But he made clear he would not bring the Communists into the government.

"I intend to maintain the difference between the governing majority and the opposition," he said. But he promised an "honest and useful confrontation" with the Communists.

However, the Socialists and the Christian Democrats are united by one thing: a desire to ward off the election of a new parliament that will have to be called if a new government cannot be put together.
