

Battalion editor guides set by publications board

The Student Publications Board approved a list of qualifications necessary to apply for the position of Battalion editor at its monthly meeting Wednesday.

The action was necessary because last year's board had suspended the usual qualifications for selection of the editor.

The qualifications for Battalion editor are: at least one year of experience in a responsible editorial position on The Battalion or comparable student newspaper; or, at least one year of editorial experience on a commercial newspaper; or, at least 12 hours of journalism including Journalism 203 and 204 (Reporting and Editing I and II) or equivalent and including completion of or enrollment in Journalism 402 (Law or equivalent.

The qualifications for AggieLand editor is at least one year in a responsible staff position on the AggieLand or equivalent yearbook experience elsewhere.

Both positions require a 2.0 overall and major GPR at the time of taking office and during the term of office.

The board will take applications for the editorial position from Feb. 16 through March 19 and will announce its selection for editor on March 31. The newly chosen editor will fill the remaining staff positions.

The board also approved a wage scale for Battalion staff for the spring semester. The new scale, proposed by current Battalion editor James Breedlove, redefines the editorial positions and wages.

Under the adopted proposal, paid reportorial positions have been limited. A journalism lab now serves as a reportorial pool for The Battalion.

The board vote was 4 to 3, with all the student members voting no. The student members supported a discussed wage scale that would have provided for five paid reporters and trimmed editors' salaries.

The discussed scale was tentatively approved for use in the 1976-77 school term.

Carrillo claims Zertuche operated actual store

AUSTIN, Tex. — Suspended Judge O. P. Carrillo tried today to convince the Texas Senate that Zertuche General Store was no figment of anyone's imagination.

The Senate, which is acting as a jury in the Duval County judge's impeachment trial, returned after an eight and a half hour session Wednesday during which Carrillo completed 17 hours of testimony over four calendar days.

On the stand today was George Zertuche Sr., Benavides, father of Hector and Arturo Zertuche who the defense says operated Zertuche General Store as a separate business from the Farm and Ranch store, owned by the judge and his brother, Ramiro Carrillo, a Duval County commissioner.

One of the impeachment charges facing Carrillo in the Senate is the allegation that he sold goods to the county, Benavides school district and a local water district through a fictitious "Zertuche General Store."

Zertuche testified Wednesday that the Zertuche General Store was in operation until its building and stock were damaged by a hurricane in 1967. He said he helped transfer the store's safe to the Farm and Ranch Store, about four or five blocks away from the hurricane.

Earlier, Mrs. Elvira Rodriguez, Benavides, testified she worked at the Zertuche General Store part time from about 1966 until its stock was moved to the Farm and Ranch store in 1967.

"Yes, sir. There was a Zertuche General Store," she said. "We had linens and pillow cases. We had TV sets, some refrigerators, some stoves and lots more items."

She said she got nothing for working in the store but received $150 a month for part time work with the county welfare office.

On cross examination she said it was not known as the Zertuche General Store after the merchandise was moved to the Farm and Ranch store.

In his testimony Wednesday, Carrillo testified he loaned

County political boss George A. two bulldozers without a permit ther than that indulge in a subterfuge have the county pay for

The judge said that Carrillo admitted himself in April, told him used a scheme of phony invoices have the county pay for

Schnabel inquiry expanded by Smith

AUSTIN, Tex. — Dist. Atty. Bob Smith has expanded his investigation of Secretary of the Senate Charles Schnabel's office to include the rental-purchase records for every Texas senator over the past seven years.

Smith conceded Wednesday that he may have to revise his prediction that the investigation of Schnabel's office will be completed by mid-February.

Smith's investigators Tuesday seized an expensive "rental" camera with Schnabel's initials and Social Security number engraved on it. The camera was in Schnabel's office. After that, Smith said Wednesday, "I felt it was absolutely essential that we review those files," he said.

The tedious work began Wednesday.

But he has never used his file to send a newsletter or a mailout, he said. "Everything I've done has been on a one-on-one basis." And as for the computer, "I haven't used it for a damn thing."

"My life and my office is an open book," McKnight said.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, said he is having his file computerized because "anytime you get over 4,000 names it is cheaper." He has approximately 10,000 names in his file, he said. He never uses it during campaigns, he said.

Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, said it hurts a politician to have his name mentioned in a story about Schnabel. But, he said, "Call 'em like you see 'em."

Rice Hotel scheduled to reopen

HOUSTON — The 63-year-old downtown Rice Hotel is scheduled to reopen in early April as the Rice Rittenhouse Hotel.

A $7 to $9 million refurbishment program is underway at the Houston landmark which has been closed since April 1, 1975.

James M. Cazanans, chairman of Rice Rittenhouse Hotel Corp., announced Wednesday terms of an approximately $19 million purchase agreement between Rice University and Rittenhouse investors of New York.

The grand jury will consider "a variety of things — some of it's going to be exploratory."

One of the witnesses may be an Austin key punch operator who was placed on the Senate payroll for several months in 1971 and 1972 to convert the political file of then-Sen. Don Kennard, D-Fort Worth, into computer cards. Kennard says all legislators should have this done.

Three senators are having their files computerized through an inter-agency agreement with the Water Development Board.

Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, said Schnabel told him employees were available for this purpose and that he agreed to have the 25,000 to 30,000 "green cards" in his file computerized.

"Mine is not a political file," McKnight said. "Well, I guess you could call it a political file."

Under the agreement signed last week, Rittenhouse bought the hotel and assets from the university, signed a 50-year lease with option to buy the hotel and acquired a lease to operate the Rice garage.

Cazanans said the hotel will employ some 700 persons. The remodeling will reduce the number of rooms from 900 to 700 with 300 to 400 ready for the April opening.

Cazanans and Rittenhouse "fully intend to exercise" an option to purchase the land on which the hotel is situated "in the near future."
