Legislation designed to limit surveillance of mail opening

Associated Press
WASHINGTON — While
President Ford wants to expand the government's authority to open mail, legislation is being drafted in Congress to limit use of a companion tool, the surveillance of the outside of an envelope.
Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., chairman of the House postal facilities subcommittee, has ordered the panel's staff to draw up a bill tightening legal restrictions on such surveillance, known as a mail cover.
Such a procedure involved noting information on the outside of an envelope without opening it.
Mail covers now can be undertaken by the Postal Service on written request of a law enforcement agency. This procedure also allows opening of second, third and fourth class mail.

Wilson's subcommittee bill would require court orders approving specific mail covers, a measure opposed by the Postal Service. Such court orders now are required before government agents can open first-class mail and then only in criminal investigations.
The CIA and FBI for years opened mail illegally and the Justice Department is considering prosecuting persons involved. Neither agency obtained court orders authorizing the openings.
Ford proposed in a message to Congress last week that legal mail openings be expanded "to obtain virtually needed foreign intelligence information." Ford said he wanted to expand this to include investigations of spying, sabotage and terrorism. A search warrant would be required for these under the President's proposal.

Ironically, a source close to the CIA said new mail openings probably would not produce as much useful intelligence information as the old program.

"The effectiveness of the program was that the Bureau were unaware of it. Since the cover was blown on it, it won't be that much information of any use going through," source said.

Traditions broken in MSC selections

The MSC Council was in executive session for three and a half hours last night to hear nominating committee reports and select committee chairmen for the coming year.
New chairmen will take office April 3.
"I'm quite satisfied with the people selected," said John Nelson, chairman of the Nominating Committee which interviewed all applicants and made recommendations to the Council.
The selection process moved as fast as expected, said Nelson, and the committee gave due consideration to all the positions.
Two traditions were broken, he said. This year's chairmen include the first female chairmen of both the Great Issues and Town Hall committees. The Town Hall selection is also the first non-Corps, said Nelson.

Today in history

Today is Friday, February 1976, the 40th day of the semester. There are 71 days Final Review, 77 days until the final exam.
On this date in 1963, top officials formally presented a osal to state legislators which commended the name of the be changed to Texas A&M Uni-sity. The committee of legiswas made up of ten former stuof Texas A&M.
On this date in 1959, new were adopted governing the of cadets in Duncan Hall. The policy was designed to elimi-practices certain which were deemed to make eating unpleafor the freshman cadets.
On this date in 1935, H. C. denfels, editor of The Longhorn, announced that the eight young to be named to the "Vanity Fair" section of the yearbook were chosen by Mrs. James V. Allred, of the current Texas governor. He thought to be the first time a gonor's wife had done the honors.

Course open

A new horticulture course, at the home gardener, is now offered by the Texas A&M Uni-sity Department of Soil and Sciences.
Ron Perry, instructor, said course for non-horticulture in response to the sudden in-interest in gardening and yard-by suburban dwellers.
Topics covered are landscap-indoor plant care, vegetable growing, fruit growing, plant lawn care, plant propagation, and disease control, fertilization, soil management.
The course provides three credit and involves two one-hour tutes and one two-hour laboraper week.
Faculty, staff and students eligible to enroll, Perry said. course is offered every semes-cept the second summer ses-is limited to 40 students per ter.
