Wallace confronted by hecklers

"Free Artie Bremer." The incident prompted an apology from Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, but Wallace said that wasn't necessary.

"The governor doesn't owe me an apology because the people here have been good to me for many years," Wallace said later in Janesville. He referred to heavy votes he got in previous Wisconsin primaries.

Later, as Jackson approached an airport fence lined with spectators, moisture struck him in the face and Secret Service personnel hustled away a young man.

"Water. Junk," Jackson remarked. His news secretary Brian Corcoran, said it was spit.

Jackson's airport detractors shouted slogans critical of the military aircraft industry in his home state of Washington.

In Milwaukee, Jackson said he expects to make a good showing in Wisconsin, while Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., predicted he would win the same day in New York.

Carter, in Bloomington, Minn., said it is unlikely he will win New York's primary. But he said he will reach the Democratic National Convention this summer with 1,000 or more delegates — of the 1,505 needed — and will win the nomination on the first ballot.

There were these other developments on the political front Tuesday:

— The House in Washington approved and sent to the Senate a measure to allow government employees to participate in partisan political activities. The House then took up a bill to restore the Federal Election Commission's power to disburse public funds for presidential campaigns.

— A judge in Lincoln, Neb., ruled that Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, despite their disclaimers, will not be able to remove their names from the ballot for Nebraska's May 11 Democratic primary.

— Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., former chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said he will not run for re-election this year. The 75-year-old Hebert is the fourth-ranking House member in seniority.

— Reagan apparently lost a bid to run a statewide slate of delegate candidates for the Republican convention delegates in Ohio's June 8 primary. Harold Holzworth, chairman of the Franklin County Board of Elections, said the board eliminated 263 signatures from Reagan's delegate petitions, putting the number of eligible signers under the required 1,000.

Twenty-eight delegates to next summer's GOP convention will be elected in statewide voting in Ohio, with another 67 elected in congressional district races. Reagan has slates entered in many of the congressional districts, and they apparently were not affected.

Women's rights discussed

Are you being discriminated against because of your sex when you look for a job? What can you do about it if you are? (Besides changing your sex?)

Women's legal rights were discussed by a six-member panel of speakers yesterday at the Women's Career Conference. The conference is being held this week in the University Center.

Ken Livingston, Affirmative Action officer here at A&M, offered some guidelines to be used in determining if there is sex discrimination. A pamphlet by the United States Equal Employment Opportunity Commission was distributed to illustrate those guidelines. They were: 1) labeling a job as a man's or a woman's, 2) discrimination against hiring married women but not married men, 3) pre-employment inquiries as to sex used for discriminatory purposes for women, 4) discrimination between men and women with regard to fringe benefits, and 5) the benefits and privileges, reinstatement, and payment under any sick-leave plan, should also be true for pregnancy or childbirth on the same terms as they are applied to other temporary disabilities.

Livingston said that if a woman feels she has been discriminated against during a job interview she may call or write the Equal Opportunity Commission or contact her own attorney.

Lou Van Pelt, director of A&M career planning and placement, introduced the other four members of the panel.

Most companies really do want to be law abiding, said Shirley Ann Smith, supervisor for employment and placement for Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corporation out of Houston.

Richard Morse, recruitment representative for Shell Companies out of Houston, said Shell hired 52 per cent women and minorities last year, 32 per cent being women.

Paula Smith, personnel services administrator for Dresser Industries in Houston, is recruiting women for sales engineering.

West Campus Features Mall

By RANDY DUSEK
The Soil and Crop Sciences and Entomology Center and the Animal, Poultry and Food Sciences Center, part of the West Campus addition, are called the finest of any agricultural college in the United States by Dr. L. S. Pope, associate dean of Agriculture.

Neuhas and Taylor of Houston designed the Animal, Poultry and Food Sciences Center which will be a poured-in-place concrete structure with a mall in the center. With 165,000 square feet, it will include an auditorium seating 350 people, more than a dozen class and seminar rooms and offices for the staffs of the Animal Science and the Poultry Science departments.

It will also contain 45 laboratories for research in animal nutrition, genetics and immunology, meat science and physiology. The Animal Science and Poultry Science Extension Specialists will use the building as a base for their statewide programs.

The Soil and Crop Sciences and Entomology Center designed by Harrell and Hamilton of Dallas, will feature two parallel units which will connect and form a mall with overhead walkways bridging them.

This 153,000 square foot building will contain the Soil and Crop Sciences Department which researches agronomy and soil conservation and the Entomology Department which researches insect control. Nearly 85 per cent of this building will be devoted to laboratories for teaching and research.

Extension specialists from the Agronomy Department and the Entomology Department will conduct research and coordinate statewide activities from this building.

The structures were designed to conserve energy. The air conditioning system will accommodate 100 per cent outside air when the weather permits free cooling.

Pope said that placing the buildings on the west side of the campus closer to the vet school and other centers will make it easier to coordinate research.
