48 per cent increase expected

Employe insurance rates to rise

Insurance premiums are going up, effective Sept. 1, 1976, for University employes.

The Southwestern Life Insurance Co., of Dallas, in a letter to Ray Smith, director of personnel at A&M, said that it will be necessary to increase premiums for the System Group Medical Insurance approximately 48 per cent.

Premiums for the life insurance and long-term disability plans probably would remain the same.

Under the proposed rates, the premium for an employe, with the best medical insurance offered under the System plan, will increase from $14.65 to $21.68 per month.

Premiums for the same coverage for an employe and one dependent will increase from $32.50 to $48.10 and, for an employe with two or more dependents, the increase will be from $44.65 to $66.08 monthly.

Southwestern Life said higher claims than expected and inflation in costs of medical treatment are the reasons for the increase.

Ford reinstates tech office

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Ford on Tuesday signed a bill re-establishing the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy, dismantled three years ago by President Nixon.

Saying that "a strong federal effort in science, engineering and technology is critical to our future," Ford signed the legislation in an East Garden ceremony attended by several leading American scientists and engineers.

"This new office will provide an important source of advice on the scientific, engineering and technical aspects of issues that require attention at the highest levels of government," he said.

The office will have a budget of $3 million for fiscal 1977. The bill also includes $750,000 to support the office between now and the end of the current fiscal year in June and $500,000 for the transitional quarter, from July 1 until the new fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

The President is expected soon to name a director for the office who also will serve as Ford's science adviser. There will be four associate directors and a staff of about 15.

The office will advise the President on all aspects of science and technology, including energy, agriculture, medicine, the economy, the environment and use of resources. It also will advise the National Security Council on military research.

Ford's decision to recreate the office by statute rather than by executive order as previous presidents have done, shows his intent to make it a permanent part of the White House establishment.

President Roosevelt set up the first such office during World War II. Its role lapsed after the war, but it was revived by President Eisenhower in 1957 after the Russians launched Sputnik I, the first earth satellite.

Nixon abolished the office in 1973 and transferred many of its functions to the National Science Foundation. He said the action was taken to save money.

Texas drivers may donate body parts

Persons applying for a Texas Driver's License now have the option of donating parts of their bodies to a hospital if they are killed in an accident.

The state legislature passed a law that took effect in January, 1976, and provides the basis for the donation system.

When a person receives his new driver's license, he may sign a statement on the back of the license in which he specifies which parts of his body will be made available upon his death. The signature must also be witnessed by two others.

If the donated part can be removed within a reasonable time after death, the operation will be performed at the nearest hospital.

A hindrance with this program lies in a state law which requires that a body remain at the scene of death until a justice of the peace has made an investigation. This can delay removal of the body parts until they are no longer useable.

The Department of Public Safety does not keep records of how many body parts have been donated, so it is not known how many persons are using the donation system.

Persons not wishing to donate body parts should leave the back part of their driver's licenses unsigned.
