Scientists study pollutants

"Our particular interest involves two aspects," said Giam. "First is an investigation of the processes by which some organic pollutants are transported from land to the Gulf of Mexico and, secondly, we want to look at the biological effects of these pollutants on marine organisms like shrimp, crab and fish."

"We will provide an estimate of the flow of pollutants, in this case, to the Gulf," he added. "The pollutants of immediate interest are phthalates (plasticizer compounds which make plastic pliable) and another common class of pollutants, chlorinated common class of pollutants, chlorinated hydrocarbons which included PCB's (polychlorinated biphenyls) and the DDT family."

"Both these industrial compounds are produced in huge amounts," Giam said. "In the case of the phthalates, nearly one billion pounds per year, through the air, rivers and other elements of the environment, end up in the ocean which serves as a sink. But, not much is known about the amounts and processes by which they are transferred."

"We'll look at what contributions the various pollutant pathways make to marine environments using the Gulf of Mexico as a model sink," he explained.

"The second project will try to look at the biological impact of pollutants on marine life, including larval development in shrimp and crabs," Neff said. "Also, we'll note accumulation and metabolism of these compounds by marine organisms in addition to fat metabolism of fish."

"There are indications that these compounds we're looking at are toxic to fresh-water organisms; however, their effects on marine organisms haven't been established," Giam said. "We want to know if there is or there isn't a deleterious effect."

TEXAS 1876

HOOD COUNTY — A little child was bitten by a rattlesnake, but under the treatment of Dr. Hanna was rapidly relieved. It is as well to mention that indigo moistened to a thick paste and applied to the wound is very effective in neutralizing the poison.

GAINESVILLE — Professor Alderson of the Gainesville High School expelled two young men from his school because they accompanied two young ladies to attend the meeting of a mite society.

BELL COUNTY — Farm laborers are worth from $8 to $15 per month with board; mechanics, from $2 to $2.50 per day, and some as high as $4 and $4 per day.

BRENNHAM — Capt. McNelly considering retirement from the service because it is impossible to accomplish any good results in protecting the border area with the small force placed at his disposal. He estimates it would take 400 or 500 men to keep the Mexican marauders at home. At present there is very little stealing going on, from the fact that the marauders have stolen everything in sight.

CALVESTON — The "Daily News" editor suggests placing small signs on slips of tin, bearing the names of intersecting streets, on the lamp-posts of our city. Hardly anything of more practical value to the general public to strangers especially, could be suggested. Not a day passes without great numbers of people asking the names of our most familiar streets.

AUSTIN — The House has passed a bill giving sheriffs increased power in apprehending criminals. Among its provisions is one that would allow the shooting of persons pursued by the law. Repeated attempts to pass the State Detective Force bill have failed.

CASTROVILLE — Postal delivery on the lower Medina and Frio done at night; love letters reading "leave the country twenty days" are left at the residences of some of the stockmen of that section.

BASTROP — The highest estimate placed upon corn this fall in Bastrop County is from 25 to 30 cents a bushel and for cash now, any amount could be engaged at the former price.

ADVERTISEMENTS — Mind Reading, Psychomancy, Fascination, Soul Charming, Mesmerisms and Marriage Guide, showing how either sex may fascinate and gain the love and affection of any person they choose instantly; 400 pages. By mail, 50 cents. Hunt, Co., Philadelphia.
