S. African police kill 2 blacks in segregated township

Associated Press
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police killed two blacks in the segregated township of Soweto on Monday, and reported finding the bodies of four others apparently killed during disturbances over the weekend.

Government officials said U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and South African Prime Minister John Vorster would meet again Sept. 4 in Zurich, Switzerland, for three days of talks on the steadily escalating racial violence in southern Africa.

Sources in Washington said Kissinger might also make a second trip to Africa next month if the talks go well and a solution to the growing black nationalist guerrilla war in neighboring Rhodesia seems to be possible.

A police spokesman said officers opened fire on "common criminal elements" who were throwing stones at Soweto residents and police early Monday. "The police fired in self-defense and two blacks were killed," he said.

Police also fired tear gas to disperse a large crowd of blacks stoning passing cars in one area during the day. But the huge ghetto was later reported generally quiet.

The deaths brought to at least 41 the number killed in clashes with police and in fighting between Zulu contract laborers and permanent black Soweto residents that began last Monday. At least 293 persons, all but three black, have died in racial violence in South Africa since mid-June.

South African commentators have begun questioning Kissinger's plan to promote majority rule in Rhodesia and South-West Africa while providing financial guarantees for whites who remain there after the blacks take over.

"All risks are on Vorster's side," said one U.S. based South African newspaper columnist. "He gets nothing unless the whole exercise is successful."

"But if it breaks down halfway, or if the Africans betray Kissinger and, having won Rhodesia, let the guerrillas cross the Limpopo (the river boundary between Rhodesia and South Africa) or renege on guarantees to the whites of either Rhodesia or South-West, the Americans lose nothing."

"They take the credit for having 'liberated' Rhodesia and South-West Africa and leave Vorster to face the consequences of his diplomacy alone," he concluded.
