

Presidential nomination causes split

Texas Republicans battle over GOP chairman

By GARTH JONES Associated Press

AUSTIN — The split among Texas Republicans over President Ford and Ronald Reagan for the presidential nomination developed Tuesday into a battle for the next state GOP chairman.

Ray Barnhart, Pasadena former state legislator who was chairman of the 100 per cent Reagan Texas delegation to Kansas City, announced he would oppose State GOP Chairman Ray Hutchison, Dallas, who wants re-election.

Both say they will support the Ford-Dole ticket in the Nov. 2 general election.

Barnhart first said after the Reagan loss in Kansas City that he would support the platform but he was not sure about campaigning for the Ford-Dole ticket.

Hutchison stayed neutral during the hot June presidential primary but the avid Reaganites refused to name him a delegate to Kansas City because he refused to speak out for Reagan. Others said Hutchison actually favored Ford.

"I am firmly convinced that President Ford's election must be a major goal of our party and just as firmly convinced that we must continue to apply all pressures possible to assure that our Texas philosophy is strongly felt in the Ford administration," Barnhart told a news conference Tuesday.

Barnhart said he decided to make his stand for Ford after spending Monday in Washington talking to James Baker, newly named National GOP chairman.

"I wanted to be assured that there would be a very firm approach in Texas on the basis of the platform and that there would be a strong campaign in Texas and I have been assured that," Barnhart said. "The Ford campaign strategists consider Texas a key state in the campaign," he said.
