Testing shows safety questionable. FDA bans Red 4 food dye

Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration today banned the artificial colors used to make maraschino cherries red and jelly beans and licorice black, saying their safety is questionable.

Laboratory tests with dogs suggest that food dye called Red No. 4 may cause urinary bladder polyps and atrophy of the adrenal glands, the FDA said. Furthermore, there is no reliable testing method to assure that the color carbon black does not contain a cancer-causing byproduct, the agency said.

The FDA announced it also will ban 10 other color additives, approved for use only in cosmetics, in 30 days. It will also permanently approve 20 other colors for use only in external drugs and cosmetics by the year's end and give industry more time to conduct further safety testing of 52 other colors, three of them in food.

Richard Ronk, who heads the FDA's color additives division, said the carbon black ban signals an end to black jelly beans and licorice.

It was unclear whether the Red No. 4 ban would spell the same fate for red maraschino cherries or whether another additive can be used.

The color does not influence the flavor of cherries, which also are marketed in green and in their natural yellow color after processing.

Three years ago, the Giant Food retail chain began marketing maraschino cherries without artificial coloring in its 110 stores in Virginia, Maryland and Washington, D.C. But "they have not been a wildly popular product," store officials say.

"People always think cherries should be red, and yellow ones just don't register. They're looking for something red to put on grapefruit or in whiskey sours," said Janet Tenney, assistant to Giant's vice president for consumer programs.

Under the FDA order, Red No. 4 is banned for use in foods and drugs taken internally, but can still be used safely in cosmetics and externally applied drugs.

Carbon black is banned for use in candies, drugs and cosmetics such as eye shadow and mascara. The FDA said there is a "lack of adequate chemical specifications for the color and no adequate method to test for the presence of low levels of a manufacturing byproduct called extractable polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons, some of which are known carcinogens."

The announcement follows the FDA's ban last February of Red No. 2, which until last year was the nation's most widely used artificial color in foods, drugs and cosmetics.

Red No. 40, another color that has been eyed by industry as a possible substitute for Red No. 2, is self under suspicion but still officially approved for use. Canada follows the use of Red No. 2 but not Red No. 40.

Nostalgia returns with 12; dinners

Joe Sena rolled back time 142 years when he hired 25 extra waitresses and began selling full-course dinners for 12 cents.

In 3½ hours the restaurant had served 1,500 meals. Hungry bargain hunters ordered from a bill of fare duplicated from the menu at Delmonico's Restaurant when that fashionable New York eatery was founded in 1834.

"I just wanted to do something crazy once in my life. This is it," Sena said of the evening, which he estimated costed him $6,000.

The program, which will also be shown throughout Europe, will be the first co-production involving U.S. television and the official state broadcasting organization of Romania.

The gymnast received an unprecedented seven perfect 10-point scores and won three gold, one silver and a bronze medal at the Montreal Olympics.

Ash, 57, said Tuesday he will be paid $225,000 a year and has bought 300,000 shares of common stock from the company at $9 a share. This will make him one of the largest individual shareholders.

A suit filed Monday alleges MGM has been unjustly enriched and has invaded Williams' privacy by using scenes from several of her films in "That's Entertainment" and "That's Entertainment Part II."

The clips used in the two films were from pictures made while Williams was under contract to MGM for a weekly salary that started at $75 and ended 14 years later at $200.

Torme, wife await custody decision

Singer Mel Torme and his English wife, actress Janette Scott, will let a Los Angeles court decide a custody battle over their two children.

This agreement was reached Tuesday after legal arguments before a High Court judge in London and out-of-court negotiations.

No objections to investigations

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), says he doesn't object to reopening the investigation into the assassination of his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy.

Last week the House of Representatives formed a special committee to investigate the Kennedy and Martin Luther King assassinations.

Child recognized as Hendrix's son

An appeals court in Sweden has upheld a lower court ruling that a six-year-old Swedish boy was fathered by Jimi Hendrix, the late American rock music star.

The ruling, which was handed down Tuesday, is not binding in the United States.

Korchnoi fears Soviet violence

Viktor Korchnoi, Soviet grandmaster, who is now living in exile in the West, said Tuesday that Soviet violence will not keep him out of the world chess championships.

At his first news conference since defecting early last month, Korchnoi said he feared violence by Soviet authorities.

Comaneci to do Wilson's special

Comedian Flip Wilson will be joined by Olympic gold-medalist Nadia Comaneci, Romanian gymnast, in a one hour television special to be shown Thursday, Nov. 18, on CBS.

Roy Ash to head Addressograph

Roy L. Ash, who was U.S. budget director from 1972 through 1974 has been named board chairman and chief executive officer of Addressograph-Multigraph Corp.

D-i-v-o-r-c-e hits Tammy Wynette

Tammy Wynette has filed suit for divorce from her fourth husband, John Michael Tomlin, to whom she was married July 18.

The divorce suit, filed in Circuit Court Tuesday, alleged that Tomlin, a Nashville real estate executive, has "been guilty of such cruel and inhuman treatment as to render further cohabitation unsafe and improper."

Corbett breaks record, wrists

Billy Corbett says he broke a record 5,800 bricks in Anchorage, Alaska during a karate demonstration for charity and cracked his wrists in the process. He says he's out of a job, out of money and "disgusted" because nobody seems to care.

Only four kids watched the 105-minute demonstration that was held recently under gray, drizzly skies to raise money to help fight muscular dystrophy.
