

Terrorists claim N. Y. bombing

Associated Press
NEW YORK — A Puerto Rican terrorist group, called "FALN," has claimed responsibility for a powerful bomb that exploded in a stairwell of the New York Hilton, 21 floors above a banquet where Puerto Rican Gov. Rafael Hernandez-Colon was being honored.

No one was injured in the blast. (FALN is an acronym for a Spanish phrase meaning "Armed Forces of National Liberation of Puerto Rico.")

A woman who identified herself as a member of FALN called the New York Post after the explosion last night to report the bombing, which she called a protest against Hernandez-Colon's visit. Police said they later found a communique from FALN taped to a telephone in a booth one block from the hotel. Police Commissioner Michael Codd said contents of the note would be made public later today.

FALN has been linked to about a dozen bombings in the last two years in the New York City area.

Experiment to determine if music can help kids read

Associated Press
LOS ANGELES — It won't be Dick and Jane helping youngsters learn to read in some classrooms this fall, but rock 'n' rollers like Fleetwood Mac, Paul Simon and the Doobie Brothers.

A program called HITS (High Interest Teaching Systems) is bringing the Top 40 into the classroom in the hope of motivating students whose reading skills are structurally weak.

Compared with the traditional ways of learning the fundamentals of reading, it is little wonder the kids love HITS.

Instead of sitting in a circle, awaiting their turns to read aloud, HITS students make themselves comfortable, plug in their earphones and listen to a half-hour of their favorite music.

At the beginning of each tape, a disc jockey introduces a song and instructs the students to follow along in their workbooks.

They hear words already familiar to them, and see the words printed in their workbooks.

As the students hear the words of their favorite songs, they learn how the words are put together.

Vaccine shortage may cause new poliomyelitis outbreak

Associated Press
ATLANTA — Polio vaccine shortages are being reported by two state health departments because of a contract disagreement between a federal agency and a vaccine supplier anxious to protect itself from possible lawsuits.

The federal Center for Disease Control here said the impasse comes at the height of the traditional school pupil vaccination season and a time when federal health officials fear declining immunization could lead to new outbreaks of the paralyzing disease.

An assistant secretary in the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Dr. Theodore Cooper, said in a recent memo, "I am fearful that curtailment of childhood immunization activities in a number of states may result in outbreaks of the disease."

Negotiations are at a stalemate between the CDC, which distributes vaccines to most states, and Lederle Laboratories, the principal supplier of the vaccine, a CDC spokesman, Betty Hooper, said yesterday.

The company fears lawsuits could arise from possible side effects of the vaccine. It wants wording to say the CDC "warrants" that parents of school children give written "informed consent" to the vaccinations.

Most severely affected by the shortage of vaccine are South Carolina, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.
