...fishermen are not used to fish-
...deep since bass are usually
...in relatively shallow water. If ...walleye did survive, however, sooner or later somebody's bound to hook one. Walleye have been stocked in several Texas lakes in an effort to get them established. When we become accustomed to their habits, we will have another fine gamefish to go along with the bass. I have fished in the Bryan Utilities Lake several times, mainly for bass. Last Saturday I fished in it for about 5 hours, and brought home only one fish. However, that one was a four pounder, so I didn't consider the day a loss.

I worked mainly the shallow water around the banks, thinking the bass would be in the moss and weed beds that are common around the lake. I did take 8 or 10 small fish that were under legal size, indicating that there has been a fairly good spawn by the original stocked fish.
From talking to people who have fished the lake, spinner baits seem to be a good choice for taking the bass. That was the case Saturday, because I offered them everything in my tackle box before trying on a chartreuse spinner with twin blades. I got many more strikes from this bait than the others, although most of the fish were small. I pulled the four pounder from a thick moss bed, and hung another good fish from the same general area.
Although I wouldn't rate the Utilities Lake as high as other bigger lakes, it can provide some good fishing that is close to home. The lake can be reached by heading north on FM 2818, passing under the highway 21 underpass. A couple of miles past 21 there is a sign which shows the way to the lake and park.
It costs $2 per car to enter the park, and the permit is good for one day. I thought that was a little high at first, especially when I just wanted to fish for three or four hours. However, if I drove to Lake Somerville instead, it would cost at least two dollars for the gas, maybe more. For fishermen who don't have much time for traveling to a lake, the Bryan Utilities Lake Park is convenient and it's not a bad fishing hole.

Water polo team victorious

By PAUL ARNETT

The men's water polo team, lead by freshmen Steve Spicer, defeated San Francisco State University last night 15-5. Spicer lead all point men scoring four goals, with Oran Marksbury and Jim Yates contributing three goals apiece.
The Ags, playing in a California Tournament, have now played in 40 games without a loss.
"We had a good team effort," Coach Dennis Fosdick said. "We had good motion, good drives and good speed. Our performance has improved 100 per cent since our opening game victory over S. M. U."
The team began slowly against the California club, scoring only two goals in the first quarter. But it didn't take the Ags long to shake-off those pre-game jitters as they scored four goals in the second quarter, adding three in the third and six in the fourth and final period.
"We had a lot of new faces in our attack," said Fosdick. "Our passing was off, but our defense was outstanding. We played better as the game went on, and I am really happy with all those assists."

The Ags had 13 assists in the contest, lead by Marksbury and David Meek with three each.
Fosdick played his entire team, and feels this will give everybody needed game experience.
"The team we played tonight was not too good," said Fosdick. "Giving our guys the experience will really help in our two games that we play today."
The Ags play California State University and the University of Pacific, with each team giving the Ags their stiffest competition all year.
Tournament play begins on Saturday, with the Ags playing Santa Clara at 8 a. m., followed by Fresno State at noon and California University at 4 p. m. California has won the NCAA title the past two years.
If the Ags win all three then they will play two games on Sunday to determine the champion of that bracket. If they lose on Saturday, they will play only one game on Sunday in the consolation bracket.
Fosdick's six year record with the Ags is now 109-14-1.
